Scope of G-M Strike Chief Obstacle to Quick Settlement

At Least 93,489 Employes Idle at 27 General Motors Plants; Greatest Numbers at Detroit and Flint.

MURPHY BUSY

Governor Murphy Confers with Union Leaders Until 2:15 a. m. Today; Week-end Recess.

(By The Associated Press)

Detroit, Jan. 9—The widespread nature of the crippling strikes in General Motors plants, The Associated Press learned today, provides the chief obstacle to agreement on terms for a peace parley between the corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America.

"This situation", an authoritative source said after the last of a series of nearly all-night conferences, "has such a wide scope and is so complicated that numerous discussions are necessary."

As the deadlock continued, strikes and shut-downs caused by shortages of supplies and parts left at least 93,849 employes idle at 27 General Motors plants stretched from New Jersey to Missouri and from Michigan to Georgia. The greatest numbers were at Detroit, where 28,972 were out of work, and at Flint, Mich., where 26,359 were idle.

A group of employes at a Detroit Chevrolet plant telegraphed President Roosevelt a request that he "use all the influence of your high office" to effect an "early settlement of this strike."

Governor Frank Murphy, acting as peace-maker, conferred with union leaders last night, and their final session ended at 2:15 a. m. (EST).

The last time Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., entered the governor's hotel room he was carrying a paper presumed to be an outline of the union's position on the negotiations Murphy hopes to arrange, but Murphy attached no significance to the document.

"I have received no written statement from the union," said Michigan's chief executive.

Week-End Recess

"We are still at work. There will be further conferences during the day and over the week-end."

It was learned there were notes in the governor's suite from both the union and the corporation, but their contents were unknown. Gov. Murphy returned yesterday from a conference with William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, bearing a paper which he willingly showed to James F. Dewey, federal conciliator.

Martin said the union's views would be "clarified" at a 10 a. m. press conference today.

Minor disorders connected with the labor crisis occurred in two cities last night. Santa (CQ) Tompkins, who said he was an employe of a Fisher body plant at Flint, but was not a striker, told police he was hit on the head when he jumped on an automobile from which an amplifier carried appeals for union support. At St. Louis, Mo., missiles were thrown at a sound truck announcing a union meeting. It was near a General Motors plant at the time. There were no casualties.

Three clergymen dispatched telegrams and Knudsen and Martin offering their "friendly services" to arrive at a "national understanding between the corporation and the union."

The signers were Rabbi Barnett Bricker, chairman of the Social Justice Committee, Central Conference of American Rabbis; the Rev. James Myers, industrial secretary, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of social action, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Protest Is Sent

Representatives of the work council at the Chevrolet forge plant in Detroit telegraphed to President Roosevelt a protest against the strike called by the U. A. W. A. They said approximately 85 per cent of the 2,500 workers "desire to continue our present method of collective bargaining."

"We vigorously protest being forced to submit to labor dictators of a minority group," the communication said. "We do favor a board set up similarly to the former National Automobile Labor Board, but with additional power to settle hourly wage disputes, which we believe would eliminate strikes.

"Mr. President, the welfare of thousands of General Motors families depends on the early settlement of this strike. We ask you to use all the influence of your high office to bring this about."

Labor Department representatives kept the President informed about the situation and Gov. Murphy telephoned White House aides.

The cleavage between those favoring and opposing the U. A. W. A. strikes became more pronounced.

WPA Makes Plans to Aid Two Millions to July 1.

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—The President's budget message was the signal today for the Works Progress Administration to go ahead with plans to care for more than 2,000,000 unemployed for the rest of the fiscal year.

The WPA action is based on Mr. Roosevelt's statement that he would ask for $650,000,000 appropriation to carry the Works Progress and related programs from February 1 through June. The sum is based on WPA costs of $65 per month per man.

If private industry fails to absorb relief workers as requested by the President in his budget message, he plans to add $140,000,000 to the appropriation request. He has expressed the hope, however, that it will not be used until the next fiscal year.

If WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins should be called on to carry a heavier load, and the $140,000,000 should be used, a work relief program continuing at the rate of 2,400,000 men—the number employed by WPA in November—could be handled.

The only reduction in rolls that can be counted on is the normal cut of about 20 per cent expected next spring, officials said. They added that outweighing this may be the local demand that WPA absorb workers now on direct relief, financed by states and cities, but who may be employable.

Loomis Pleads Own Case in Alimony Action on Friday

Barlow T. Loomis, a teacher at Mamaroneck, appeared in person before Justice Harry E. Schirick at special term Friday and argued his own case. The matter came before the court on an application for alimony and counsel fees made by Fannie T. Loomis, wife, who was represented by Arthur C. Connelly.

Mr. Connelly asked the court to allow alimony and counsel fees in the action for separation pending trial. He stated that a separation action had been commenced on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

Married at Albany in 1930, he said the couple had lived at Stamford, Conn., and at Poughkeepsie. The treatment which is alleged in the case by the wife, he said, was due to the fact that the defendant became intoxicated and had finally deserted his wife and failed to provide for her.

Toward the support of two children Mr. Loomis is paying $12.50 through an order of the children's court of Dutchess county.

Mrs. Loomis, counsel said, had been working to support herself but recently had undergone a major operation and was unable to continue her work which required her driving many miles each day by car to oversee sub-agencies. For a considerable period of time she will be unable to work and earn anything. Mr. Connelly said, and she sought to have her husband pay toward her support. A demand had been made by the wife for money to pay her hospital and doctor's bills, but the defendant had refused to make any payment, counsel said.

Mr. Loomis appeared in person. He said he was unable to hire an attorney. His profession he said was that of a school teacher.

He denied the charges made by his wife and said that "temperamentally we are unfitted to get along together" and he said that was the cause of the difficulty.

His salary, he said, was $135 a month and produced his contract to support that claim. He said he was sending his wife $50 each month toward the support of the children, but at times the payments were irregular because of the manner in which he was paid. The payments were made as regular as possible.

In addition he said he found living where he worked high. It cost him $60 to live, and he had certain social obligations due to his position. He said he had to live in a good location in order to maintain his appearance and he must be clothed to give a good appearance to hold his job. In addition he said he had been contributing toward the support of his bed-ridden mother and he said his mother would continue to need assistance from him.

Mr. Connelly replied that his investigation of the case he had learned that the matter was the other way, that the mother had aided Mr. Loomis and that he had never been compelled to support his mother.

After the discussion in open court Justice Schirick asked Loomis to remain in court until recess time, when the matter would be discussed at chambers and some attempt be made to get the parties together on their claims.

AFTER BOMBERS DRONED AWAY

The faces of these survivors reflect the horror non-combatants are suffering in Spain's "little world war." Sixteen Nationalist planes had just bombed Tetuan, the working-class suburb of Madrid, killing 12 and injuring more than 30, when this picture was made. The women were inquiring about their families. Europe Drives Forward on Land, Sea to Zones of "Little World War"

(By The Associated Press)

Bugles called the French Colonials of Morocco to the alert today as great turbines drove the French and British fleets to new danger zones of Spain's "Little World War".

Quiet orders that dealt with the emergency of casualty lists went out to British naval men and to the royal marines.

Morocco, powder keg of 1911; cradle of the Fascist revolution of 1936—there lay the newest menace to Europe's peace.

France put her Moroccan zone garrison in a virtual state of mobilization; sent the first units of her Atlantic fleet off to Mediterranean Africa for "maneuvers"; stepped up her Moroccan army from 40,000 to 100,000; reinforced the borders that bar the way to the Spanish zone of General Francisco Franco's insurgent armies.

She made it plain she will, if need be, resort to armed force, if diplomatic protests fail to stop a mass incursion of German troops into the Spanish zone—an invasion she believes is intended to wreck her scheme for colonial mobilization in the event of world war.

Britain, worried because German-built fortifications and long range guns are reported going up at Ceuta, on the empire "lifeline" and 14 miles across the Strait of Gibraltar from the fortified British rock, gave grim evidence she is preparing for any eventuality.

With 94 of her greatest warships—home and Mediterranean fleets—already on the spot or pointed for the troublous waters between Africa and Spain, her admiralty quietly observed officers and men of the royal navy and marines to report immediately any change in the names and addresses of their nearest relatives.

That usually is a precautionary preliminary to real armed action.

Germany, barred by treaty from encroachment in Morocco, said officially she "knows nothing" of the North African developments.

But France and Britain heard these reports, some of them from official sources:

3,000 Nazi Marines Land

German functionaries have taken over Spanish Moroccan administration from the Spanish insurgents; more than 3,000 German Marines and troops have landed in the zone; barracks and illegal fortifications, with German long range guns pointing out over the straits, are rising; German warships and submarines are at Ceuta, and two Nazi men o'war have anchored at Tangier, in the international

All this recalled 1911 and Agadir, the Moroccan port where the German warship Panther, dispatched to "protect German subjects", almost touched off the World War three years in advance. A Franco-German accord quieted the situation for the time.

The stirring scenes in Morocco served to draw attention from mainland Spain, where 50,000 foreign troops are fighting on one side or the other of the six months' war between a Socialist-Republican government and Fascist, military insurgents.

Yet reliable reports indicated a continued influx of thousands of German and Italian troops to the Fascisti side through the "mystery port" of Cadiz. They came in ships which flew no flags and bore no names, and they wore brand new Spanish insurgent uniforms.

Thus, French officials charged, Germany and Italy kept up their "volunteer" aid of General Franco while waiting for Great Britain, France and Russia to act on general "hands off Spain" counter-proposals to Franco-British pleas that the volunteer enlistments cease.

Two Britishers Hurt

Overnight the Fascist armies at the doorstep of Madrid bombed the city, hitting the British embassy and wounding two British subjects. Britain protested—officially and bitterly, after the second emergency session of her cabinet in two days.

France's growing belief that Germany intends to "get into Spanish Morocco and stay there" made an independent problem of the Nazi North African incursion.

Nazi engineers under military command were reported reorganizing the Reich iron mines near Melilla. That tied in with the German need and demand for the raw materials and colonies she lost because of the World War.

Pope Reported Much Better

Vatican City, Jan. 9 (AP).—Pope Pius XI was reported today more refreshed and free from pain than at any other time since his illness began because of his doctors' concentration on alleviating his local suffering.

Persons close to the pontiff, who has been confined to his bed for more than a month, said, however, it would now be almost impossible to check his grave illness.

Open sores, it was said, caused by the varicose veins in the Holy Father's partially paralyzed left leg, constantly threatened serious infection.

His right leg was reported to be growing more paralyzed daily and the arterio sclerosis to be unimproved.

The localized treatment has brought the Pope great relief, prelates said, although the official report after Dr. Amiata Milani's thorough examination this morning said there had been no change in his general condition.

Despite some suffering from his swollen legs, a good sleep again was reported for His Holiness last night.

Bishop of Buffalo

Vatican City, Jan. 9 (AP).—Bishop John a Duffy of Syracuse, N. Y., was named Bishop of Buffalo today, Vatican officials announced.

New Heating System At City Filter Plant

The Board of Water Commissioners has awarded to E. D. Coffey the contract for installing a new heating system at the city's filter plant at Zena.

A York oil burner will be installed replacing the coal burning equipment formerly in use. The work is now under way.

Man Feared Dead

Phillipsburg, N. J., Jan 9 (AP).—In a dense fog two Lehigh Valley railroad freight trains were wrecked today and fears arose for the safety of one man on the locomotive which toppled down an embankment. All other members of the train crew were accounted for. Hampered momentarily by fire which started immediately after the collision, labor crews started work among the wreckage to determine if George Mowry, of Lehighton, Pa., the missing man, had been pined in the cab of the derailed engine.

Granted Alimony

Temporary alimony of $10 a week and $250 counsel fees has been allowed pending trial of the action for divorce brought by Margaret Schoonmaker against Rufus Schoonmaker. Application for alimony and counsel fees was made before Justice Foster by Walter J. Miller, counsel for plaintiff. Bernard A. Cullinan appeared for the defendant.

Varying Reactions To Roosevelt Appeal For Child Labor Amendment

President Addressed His Appeal Friday to the 19 Non-Ratifying States Holding Regular Sessions This Year.

ACTION UNCERTAIN

Amendment Would Give Congress Power to Regulate Labor of Persons Under 18 Years.

(By The Associated Press)

President Roosevelt's appeal to the governors of 19 states to make the child labor amendment to the Constitution a major item in their legislative programs brought varying reactions today, ranging from complete agreement to "eternal" opposition.

With ratification by 12 more states necessary before the amendment becomes part of the Constitution, the President addressed his appeal yesterday to the 19 non-ratifying states holding regular sessions this year.

In addition, a special session of Kentucky's legislature probably will pass on the proposal. Gov. A. B. Chandler said he was amending his call for the session to ask ratification.

The amendment says "The Congress shall have power to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age."

The 19 states holding regular sessions are: New Mexico, Nevada, South Carolina, North Carolina, New York, Texas, Nebraska, Maryland, Connecticut, Florida, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Tennessee, Delaware, Georgia, Kansas and Missouri.

Governor Clyde Tingley of New Mexico said he had "no comment" on President Roosevelt's letter. Previously, he put the question of ratification "entirely up to the legislature."

Governor Richard Kirman of Nevada said he expects to tell the legislature, January 19: "I renew by previous recommendations that the legislature record its approval of the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution."

The legislatures of both North and South Carolina previously rejected the proposal, but Governor Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina recommended its adoption at the present session. The South Carolina general assembly will meet January 12.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman included early ratification among his recommendations to the New York legislature.

Governor James V. Allred will urge ratification in his message to the Texas legislature, probably next Wednesday. The Texas house often has approved the amendment; the senate action is doubtful.

Governor R. L. Cochran of Nebraska said he does not plan action on the letter from the President. "The ratification of a federal constitutional amendment is entirely a function of the legislature," he said. The amendment was defeated in Nebraska's 1935 Assembly.

Governor Harry W. Nice of Maryland said he would send President Roosevelt's letter to the legislature without comment when it reconvenes next Tuesday.

Governor Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut likewise had no comment. Unless the governor asked speedy action in a special message, which observers considered improbable, it appeared unlikely the amendment would be considered by the Assembly before April or May. The Connecticut legislature refused to ratify two years ago, but enacted a state child labor law.

Florida's new governor, Fred P. Cone, will recommend ratification by the state Assembly in April.

The new governor of Massachusetts, Charles F. Hurley, said he would have to read the President's message before commenting. In 1935, the last time the legislature voted on the amendment, the House defeated it by a vote of 218 to 5.

Governors Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island and Leslie Jensen of South Dakota withheld comment. The Rhode Island Assembly considered ratification but did not act two years ago.

Governor George D. Aiken of Vermont was noncommittal and the state Assembly has made no move on the subject this year. Last year the amendment obtained only seven supporters in the House.

Tennessee's governor, Gordon Browning, said flatly he was "eternally" against the amendment.

No action is pending on the amendment in the Delaware legislature.

Governor-elect E. D. Rivers of Georgia said: "I expect to cooperate with the President 100 per cent."

Governor-elect Walter A. Huxman of Kansas declined to say whether he would recommend ratification.

The Missouri legislature refused to ratify at its last two meetings, but another attempt is expected this session.

Pastoral Over Communism.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—A pastoral over the signature of Cardinal Hayes, to be read tomorrow in every church in the Archdiocese of New York at each of the Masses, terms Communism "the insidious enemy" which Roman Catholics the world over must battle today. "Armed with the crucifix and strengthened by God's grace," says the pastoral, "they wage a war against the red propagandists of anti-Christ, hopeful of victory in the power of Christ."

Conway Is Firm on Ives' Opposition As G. O. P. Speaker

Roosevelt Will Chart Plans by Court Reaction

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt's strategy on entering his second administration, sources in touch with him understood today, will be to give the Supreme Court and business an opportunity to "follow the election returns" and guide his course by the results.

Unless more liberal interpretations of the Constitution are forthcoming and business steps up employment, enlargement of legislative powers may be undertaken and budget balancing will be deferred.

This was the consensus at the capitol and among White House advisors, on the basis of the two blunt messages Mr. Roosevelt addressed to Congress this week.

Democratic leaders expected him to follow through in the inaugural address January 20 as part of a program to activate public opinion on the wage and hour and unemployment problems.

Breathless from the rush of opening developments, the Senate and House welcomed a recess today to reflect over the constitutional issue and the budget received yesterday.

A militant group of Democrats laid plans to press for an amendment from the outset. Against them stood the administration leadership.

Ulster Assemblyman Says, on Leaving Capital for Week-end, That Others Will Not Change Their Opinions.

MURRAY GOES HOME

No Change in Line up of Votes for Speaker Following Republican Caucus on Friday.

Albany, Jan. 9—(Special)—With adjournment of the Assembly Friday afternoon until 8:30 o'clock Monday night, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, Republican of Kingston, and several of his fellow "rebels" from the ranks of Ives-supporters, left Albany to spend the week-end at their homes, leaving the problem of finding a satisfactory candidate for the speakership of the 1937 Assembly still unsettled.

Before his departure from Albany, Assemblyman Conway declared that, as far as he was concerned, his opposition to the candidacy of Assemblyman Irving M. Ives, of Norwich, as speaker again this year, will be just as firm when he returns to the capitol on Monday as it has been since Tuesday night when he and seven others "bolted" the Republican caucus. Mr. Conway also expressed the belief that none of the other seven Republicans who "bolted" with him Tuesday night, are likely to be persuaded to change their attitudes over the week-end, thus leaving the speakership controversy impossible of settlement unless the Ives forces disband nd present a compromise candidate.

8 Ballots Taken.

Eight ballots have been taken since the Assembly convened at noon on Wednesday, but thus far no candidate has received a majority of the votes cast, and unless Ives garners every one of the 76 Republican votes in the Assembly, he can entertain no hope of becoming speaker, unless a group of the Democrats choose to be absent.

Few, if any conferences are expected to take place in Albany on the Assembly deadlock until Sunday night.

State Chairman William S. Murray, who has kept in close touch with the situation day and night, left for his home in Utica.

Practically every ballot taken thus far has shown a total of 73 votes for Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, of Brooklyn, leader of the Assembly Democrats, 66 for Ives, 3 each for Conway and Assemblyman Harold P. Herman, of Nassau county, 2 for Assemblyman Harold Ehrlich, of Buffalo, and one present, and not voting. Assemblyman Herman is one of those who accompanied Conway on his "walk" from the Republican caucus Tuesday night, rather than be bound by that caucus to vote for Ives.

The others who "bolted" are Leonard W. Hall, of Nassau county, Jeremiah J. Wadsworth, Livingston county, Herbert Bartholomew, Washington, and Elisha T. Barrett and Edmund R. Lupton, both of Suffolk. The two Suffolk county men are acting under orders from their county leader, W. Kingsland Macy, who announced long before the session opened that he would order his two assemblymen to oppose Ives' candidacy for speaker, because of Ives' opposition to Governor Lehman's social security program last year.

Caucus Proves Nothing

Immediately after the Assembly convened near noon Friday, Assemblyman William E. Norris, of Waterford, Saratoga county, announced there would be a Republican caucus, and called for a recess which lasted well over an hour. It was hoped then by those interested in the speakership fight, that some solution to the quarrel might be forthcoming, but when an eighth ballot was taken, following the recess, no change in the lineup of votes was made.

In contrast to the Assembly, where no business can be done while the speakership is still unsettled, the Senate has been meeting quietly following its organization Wednesday noon, with the result that 76 bills have been introduced there, and referred to committees for further consideration.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Jan. 9. (AP).—The position of the treasury on January 7: Receipts, $15,022,975.41; expenditures, $27,295,972.02; balance, $1,926,561,241.78; customs receipts for the month, $8,534,166.42. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $2,247,470,153.98; expenditures, $3,669,171,449.13, including $1,482,927,259.87 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $1,441,501,324.15; gross debt, $324,456,117,500.91, a decrease of $1,674,935.75 under the previous day; gold assets, $11,258,252,242.90, including $52,152,831.15 of inactive gold.

Rain on Ilion.

Cincinnati, Jan. 9 (AP).—Unseasonably warm weather brought buds on lilac bushes and apples today. J. Anthony Hellman, a nurseryman, said enlarged buds also were noticed on apricot trees.

Adverse Weather Pinches All Forms U.S. Transportation

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Virtually all forms of transportation felt today the pinch of adverse weather conditions in most parts of the nation.

Snow clogged highways and bitter cold brought motor traffic to a standstill in many middle west and Rocky Mountain sections.

Blizzards and fog disrupted air travel in the northern states. Thick weather slowed North Atlantic Coast shipping. Train service was affected in some middlewestern states.

Storms crippled power and communications lines in parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Missouri. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company estimated its property damage in Missouri in excess of $1,000,000.

The deaths of at least 11 persons were attributed to the weather. Four were in Texas, one in Nebraska, and two each in Arizona, Utah, and Oklahoma.

Twenty Indians in an Arizona searching party hunting for two six-year-old girls missing more than a week, were reported lost in a blizzard. Federal officials feared 10 Indians marooned in the same state would die of starvation or exposure.

There was apprehension for the safety of at least 50 motorists stranded in seven and eight-foot Utah snow drifts. Thirty-five Inyo county, Cal., miners snowbound for a week were reported in urgent need of food and fuel. Snow drifts held 18 passengers prisoners in a Nebraska train for 20 hours.

Freezing temperatures blanketed the west coast and dipped into Southern Texas.

Six-foot snow drifts proved immovable barriers for some branch line trains in Northern Iowa.

Most rural—and some city—schools were closed. Skiers at California Mountain resorts welcomed nine-foot snows.

Airports in New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania and Ohio were closed last night to regular traffic. Nearly 30 vessels waited for a lift in the fog to permit traffic in the port of Philadelphia.

Sub-zero weather persisted in the west central states. A cold wave moved eastward through Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Drivers Arrested Each Other Here

Following a collision between cars driven by William R. Pleuch, 18, of 8 Wrentham street, and Joseph Ferraro, 22, of Glasco, both drivers arrested each other on charges of reckless driving. The crash between the two cars occurred about 5 o'clock Friday evening on Foxhall avenue. No one was reported injured.

This morning in police court Pleuch and Ferraro informed Judge Culloton that they desired to retain lawyers, and the hearings were set down until Tuesday morning.

TWO WOMEN INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Chester Tuttle of 92 Ann street reported to the police department that while driving on Broadway, near Field Court, about 8:30 o'clock Friday evening that his car struck Mary Shove and Mrs. Temple, both of Wall Flats. The extent of the injuries was not stated, and reports of the accident will be filed with the police.

Zionists to Hold Meeting, January 11

Charles A. Cowen

The Kingston Zionist district will hold a meeting of particular significance on Monday evening, January 11, at 8 o'clock, in the social hall of Temple Emanuel.

A speaker of national eminence is to address the gathering, Charles A. Cowen. Mr. Cowen was born and educated in New York city. During his student years he became profoundly interested in sociological and economic problems. He resided at the Henry Street Settlement of which Miss Lillian D. Wald is head worker.

For many years he led boys' clubs and was one of the organizers of the East Side Civil Club and Madison House. He soon turned to Zionism and became active in Jewish affairs. After the Kisheneff progroms he became a member of the Jewish Defense Committee and was intimately associated with Dr. J. L. Megnes. For over a generation he was a member of the administrative committee of the Zionist Organization.

He was one of the organizers of Young Judea, a Zionist youth organization, and for a time editor of the Maccabean, the official Zionist organ. When in 1914 Justice Brandeis organized the Provisional Committee for General Zionist Affairs he became an active member of that body. This committee functioned as chief Zionist authority during the war.

Mr. Cowen was one of the original advocates of the American and the World Jewish Congress, and is now a member of the administrative committee of these organizations. For many years he was associated with one of the leading law firms in New York city. He has traveled extensively over the greater part of the globe, including Palestine and the Near East. He has written and lectured throughout the United States, Canada and in Europe, on Jewish literature and art and sociological and economic problems.

The final word of the moralist, in the Windsor-Wally case, has been spoken by a college professor: "Biologically, psychologically and sociologically, the monogamous family is the ideal type."

HIGH FALLS SCHOOL NOTES FOR MONTH OF DECEMBER

High Falls, Jan. 8—The following were neither absent nor tardy for the month of December at the High Falls school: Delores Ayers, Betty Hagerty, Lois Parry, Beatrice Tannenbaum, Suzanne Hart, Blanch Henkin, Matilda Sampson, Marie Smith, Effie Blakely, Virginia Coan, Evelyn May, Billy Briggs, Donald Briggs, Raymond DuBois, Robert Van Kleeck, John Feuerbach, Sidney Jacobs, Billy Sampson, Raymond Schoonmaker, Raymond Smith, Kenneth Coddington, Robert Countryman, Norman Grossman, Wingate Hart, Warren O'Connell, Edward Sampson, Philip Schoonmaker, Clarence Smith, Walter Smith, Charles Stokes, Clayton Sutton, Carlyle Temple, Dennis Williams, Donald Williams, Shirley Ayers, Shirley Coddington, Edna Countryman, Mary Countryman, Nora Countryman, Dorothy Jacobs, Dora Quick, Florence Ransom, Marian Shelley, Natalie Simpson, Frances Steen, Dorothy Tannenbaum, Ruth Williams, Bernice Winchell, Anita Abrahamsen, Helen Ayers, Jane Briggs, Doris Countryman, Joan Countryman, Katherine Countryman, Sirel May, Jean Parry, Loretta Quick, Mavis Schoonmaker, Mary Smith, Jane Williams, Janet Williams, Wilbur Christiana, Lawrence Coddington, Teddy Davenport, John Smith, Eli Sutton, Alvin Swehla, Jesse Temple, Eugene Terwilliger, and Donald Van Demark

Good daily work is very essential to school success. Each month we honor those who have the most perfect papers in each grade This month the competition was so keen that we have a tie in four of the grades. Here is a list of the ones winning in each grade. Joan Countryman, primer; Teddy Davenport, first, Sirel May, second; Patsy Davenport and Gloria Protoss, third; Leonard Countryman, fourth; Edna Countryman and Dorothy Tannenbaum, fifth; Virginia Coan and Evelyn May, sixth; Suzanne Hart and Matilda Sampson, seventh, and Beatrice Tannenbaum, eighth.

January 18, 19 and 20 are the dates on which regents are to be held in this school Grade examinations will be held January 21 and 22.

The next regular meeting of the Mother's Club will be held in the library, January 14. Plan to be there to help make your school a better school and to see what your child is doing.

The second term starts January 25. A new class for beginners will be started at that time. If your child is five years old and you so wish, you may enter him at that time. No other new class will be started until next fall.

The intermediate room is very proud of the two new pictures that the Mother's Club gave. They wish to express their thanks to the club for them

The Mother's Club also gave the entire school a Christmas party. They served ice cream and cookies. Everyone enjoyed this very much.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the Christmas program which was given in the Fireman's Hall, December 22. This was a community program and the school joined with the other people of the village to give this.

The third week in January is thrift week. The school has bank day each Friday. Any pupil may bring money at that time and it will be deposited in the bank in Kingston.

A copy of "The Star" may be borrowed from one of the school children. It has a pretty cover and much interesting material on the pages that follow.

Today

Broadway "Stowaway", Shirley Temple goes oriental in her latest opus, with songs by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, direction by William A Setter and production worries handled by B G DeSilva and Earl Carroll The story tingles with excitement, humor and songs and Miss Temple plays the role of an orphaned little waif on the loose in Shanghai who becomes a stowaway on a liner under strange circumstances Through her efforts, a bored bachelor is taught the meaning of love, some comical situations develop and the whole picture parades through entertaining reel after reel to reach the expected happy ending. Here is a show that will appeal to young and old and the little star's cast includes such big names as Robert Young, Alice Faye, Eugene Pallette, Helen Westley, Arthur Treacher, Astrid Allwyn and the Honorable Wu

Kingston "Come and Get It", Edward Arnold, long knocking at the door of cinema greatness, achieves his goal in the drama at the Kingston for Mr Arnold gives a brilliant performance in the role of a chore boy who becomes a lumber baron of almost legendary power and wealth Taken from Edna Ferber's novel, the screen version has both virility and reality A father and son motif runs through most of the film to form the plot structure and the whole show is produced on the grand scale with costly sets and a giant cast. Featured players include Joel McCrea, Frances Farmer, Walter Brennen Frank Shields, Andrea Leeds and Mady Christians A United Artists picture directed by William Wyler

Orpheum "A Son Comes Home" and "Big Show". Mary Boland turns to more serious matters in the best of the Orpheum features and plays the mother role for a troubled son with Wallace Ford and Julie Haydon featured It is an interestingly done performance on the part of the principals Big Show is the other feature and it brings the singing cowhand, Gene Autry in a routine western thriller with song efforts added for good measure

SMALL BUSINESS

Proof that the day of the small business man is not over is evidenced in the increased volume of business reported by the small business concerns at the close of the year. Economic students have been dazzled by the success of the great utilities and industrial plants and in their discussion of the economic condition of the country they forget the small enterprises.

While the towering stacks of the great factory and the great show windows make an impression on us, we ought not to blink the fact that on every hand in business and industrial districts we see the establishment of the small business man. That the little business man is not discouraged is indicated by the fact that in every state in the Union, we see him engaging in new enterprises. The new little plant and the new little store with its recently finished building or its freshly painted front are very much in evidence.

America has been made great by the little fellows. Perhaps he needs to brush up a little, modernize his shop and do some needed advertising in his local paper, but he has the assets of his own personality and initiative, which are priceless and for which no substitute has yet been found. Local stores supply the same quality merchandise at as reasonable prices as the stores in the larger cities and patronage of home stores is an important factor in contributing to the welfare of the community.

What Uncle Sam as a government can do is to see that small business gets an even chance to succeed and a full chance to work out its own destiny. Then it will be up to the small business man himself, and if he keeps abreast of the times, he is not going to lose his place in the economic sun.

TOP EDITORIALIST.

Arthur Brisbane demonstrated, as no other American had ever done, the importance of the newspaper editorial. This is the big fact worth remembering about him and about journalism. That he was the most powerful and popular of American editorial writers is merely an interesting detail. His method, however, is instructive. He wrote as columnist. Indeed, he was one of the first editorial columnists, and must have been interested in observing how the breed multiplied in his latter years. Signing his printed opinions, and thereby assuming personal responsibility for them, as is the way of columnists, he could maintain a continuity and preach a personal philosophy of life, as a writer of impersonal editorials cannot do.

Whether Brisbane's interpretation of events was sound and his philosophy of life was true and wholesome is another question. This present comment is concerned merely with the art of a great editorial artist.

Brisbane knew that the trick of effective writing is to transfer an idea or a mode of thinking, quickly and clearly, from the writer's mind to the reader's mind, making the process as painless as possible for the second party. He practised this psychological method so well that millions of his readers probably came to think pretty much as he did about life and public affairs, without knowing how it came about. He sharpened the wits of his readers and gave them such shrewd, practical wisdom. He was a "realist" rather than an idealist, and seemed little interested in such "spiritual values" as faith, hope, charity, tolerance and unselfishness.

OUR ASIATIC PROBLEM

Fortunately China at last seems able to take care of herself. Present signs indicate an end of Japanese bullderizm, land-grabbing and forcible exploitation. Japan may soon have to compete for Chinese trade like other nations. China may drive the domineering Japs out of her northern provinces, though she seems unlikely to regain Manchuria. Thus our own outlook for good relations and profitable business with China improves. Yet Chinese trade has never been worth all the pother we made about it. We do far more trading with our close neighbors on this continent, and will continue doing so.

But how about the Philippine Islands, from which we are preparing to withdraw, and for which Americans feel a sense of responsibility? They are valuable, for materials and trade, but are they worth the fighting of a costly war? Hardly. Our country has evidently made up its mind about that, in setting a date for Philippine independence. If we still owe our adopted Asiatic children a moral debt of protection, after doing so much for them, perhaps the best defense for them is "neutralization" of their archipelago with a joint guarantee from the most interested powers—the United States, Japan and Great Britain. Such an arrangement can probably be made.

MENDACIOUS MASTERPIECES

Americans have always had a talent for telling tall stories—"lies" to unimaginative foreigners who couldn't appreciate our art. And though Mark Twain and the other old-timers are gone, the gift remains. Several of the yarns spun in the annual work-out at Burlington, Wis., showed genius of the purest ray, worthy of immortality.

Two in particular fill us with envy for the power of imagination revealed. First, the tale of the Montana trout that the fisherman couldn't land, because it hooked its tail around a bend of the river and pulled till the line busted. Second, the sunlight so strong that its shadow wore the figures off a sundial.

USE OF CATHARTICS

It cannot be denied that with a daily or twice daily movement of the bowel, there follows a feeling of well being which is both mental and physical. And to the individual who thinks unduly about the importance of it, the failure to have a bowel movement every day is a serious matter.

This is because these individuals still think of the bowel as a sort of sewer filled with poisonous wastes, notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, and other investigators have shown that some healthy individuals have two to three movements daily and others but two to three weekly.

It is because of this fear of poisoning of the blood by the wastes in the bowel that so many now use strong purgative remedies to make sure that the bowel is kept empty, whereas a healthy bowel is never, or scarcely ever, empty.

As a matter of fact using a purgative should be a matter of serious consideration. There are times when even the healthy individual needs a purgative and there are individuals who really have need of a purgative as often as two or three times a week because there are definite reasons why the bowel, the blood and also the tissues should be deprived of liquids and other substances. However, "some of the possible disadvantages of using a purgative are well illustrated in a recent statistics from the Charity Hospital, New Orleans, covering acute appendicitis. It was shown that, of those patients receiving no purgatives before operation, one in every ninety-six died; of those who had taken a purgative before operation, one in every eleven died; of those who had been the victims of repeated purgation, one in every four died." I am quoting Prof. Oscar W. Bethea, Tulane University, in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In advising a purgative when a prompt movement of the bowel is required Prof. Bethea mentions Epsom salts, seidlitz powders, milk of magnesia and castor oil. Most of these are included in some of the patent or proprietary remedies for constipation made more agreeable to the taste and stomach by fruit juices and other substances.

It is estimated that in eighty-five per cent of cases, that is seventeen out of every twenty, the cause of the constipation is not due to any trouble with the bowel itself but to laziness, eating the wrong kinds of foods, and failing to establish a daily time to go to the stool.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Bigelow, the young American whose home is Paris, comes to New York in response to his aunt's appeal that he check on a Count Vronski whom her step-child Anne may marry. On the ship he meets the exotic looking dancer, Karsanakoff, who registers veiled interest when Bigelow mentions Vronski. Arriving at his hotel, Bigelow glimpses an attractive girl in sables who seems indiscreet. Next day he has tea with his aunt, Mrs. Phelps, who tells him of Anne's life and independent viewpoint.

Chapter Five

'It's A Late, Then'

THE door opened and a girl came in, calling in a low husky voice:

"Well, darling—has my mysterious almost-cousin arrived?"

As she advanced, Bigelow turned and their eyes met. It was the girl he had seen in the hotel corridor the night before. She was wearing a gray tweed coat with a gray fox collar, and she had a small rather impudent looking gray felt hat on her head. The cold color contrasted charmingly with her fresh fair complexion and bright hair.

"Yes," said Bigelow pleasantly, "I have arrived. Do you remember me?"

"Of course, I remember you perfectly. I should have known you anywhere," she replied with a mischievous smile.

She meant of course that she remembered him from the night before, but Mrs. Phelps knew nothing of that.

"I'm afraid he has forgotten you, darling," she said hastily, with a sly warning look at Bigelow.

"But I haven't," he protested. "Yellow curls; button nose; fat legs in short socks, and one tooth missing in front."

"Heavens," she gasped. "I must have been too divine!"

She sank into a low armchair, throwing open her coat.

"You were a little nuisance, he assured her frankly. "Still—that was a long time ago and your step-mother declares that you have improved."

"What do you think?" asked Anne looking up at him impudently.

"You seem to have all your teeth," he observed.

"Yes, fortunately the second ones lasted better than the first lot."

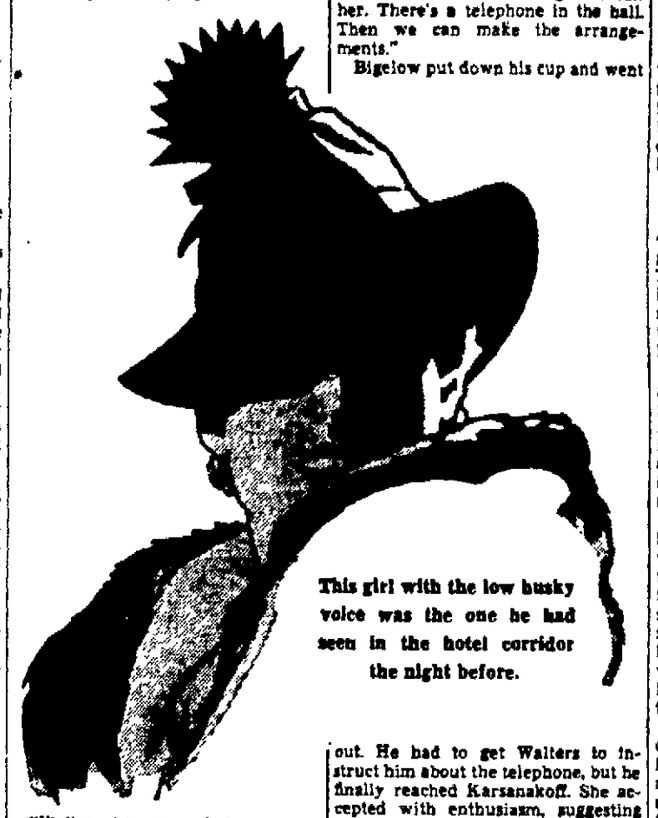
"Your nose turns up just a bit, I see, but it isn't a bad nose as noses go. At least it's small."

"Thank you."

"Your hair is certainly a better shade, now. As for—er—?"

"My legs?" she asked, with a tilt of her head.

"No—I was going to say—your character and disposition! I'll have to see something of you before I shall feel competent to judge."



This girl with the low husky voice was the one he had seen in the hotel corridor the night before.

"Well, perhaps even that can be arranged," said Anne.

"How about tonight? We might dine somewhere and dance?"

A Dinner Party Is Arranged

SHE considered the matter, as she bit into a frosted cake. "I'm afraid I can't tonight, unless we include Count Vronski. I'd promised to dine and dance with him."

"Then we must include him by all means and I'll bring Madame Karsanakoff."

"The dancer? Do you really know her? Will she come?" Anne was looking rather excited about this.

"You've seen her?" asked Bigelow.

"No. Only photographs. She's had endless publicity over here. She looks marvelous."

"She is rather stunning," he agreed.

"I like meeting people like that—people who have made something of their lives," she said. "Do go and call her. There's a telephone in the hall. Then we can make the arrangements."

Bigelow put down his cup and went out. He had to get Walters to instruct him about the telephone, but he finally reached Karsanakoff. She accepted with enthusiasm, suggesting that he bring his friends for a drink in her rooms at eight.

Anne was delighted. "I'll get hold of Anton and we'll pick you up first," she said. "At which hotel?" Her blue eyes mocked him.

"Oh—I thought you knew. The Jefferson," he answered.

"How funny!" cried Anne, wide-eyed. "Count Vronski has been staying there until today. Now he's got an apartment — terribly smart — in East 58th street. You must have an apartment, too, if you are planning to stay."

"I suppose it would be quieter," he agreed.

"Much quieter. Especially if you can get one like Anton's. It's a remodelled brownstone fronter, you know. Only three apartments in the whole house and, of course, no hall attendants or elevator boys to spy on your comings and goings."

"It sounds convenient," agreed Bigelow.

"Most!" She was laughing at him. "It's a date then, about tonight? What fun! . . . Darling—" she added, and as he lifted his eyebrows, she turned to Mrs. Phelps who had been looking on, "I think I am going to rather like having a cousin!"

Thinking About Anne

AS he bathed and dressed, Bigelow thought about Anne, and felt disposed to modify his first impression. That there could have been anything in her visit to Vronski's rooms the night before seemed impossible, now that he had had a chance to study her.

It had been indiscreet of her to go there, certainly, and the hotel employes had evidently misunderstood. Perhaps Vronski had had other visitors during his stay at the hotel and the bellboy and desk clerk had been unable to discriminate. That must be the explanation.

He wondered how long she had been foolish enough to remain there with Vronski, and then realized that the length of her stay would not matter very much if anyone besides himself had seen her. He could understand Philip Whitelaw's criticizing her if that was the sort of thing she was in the habit of doing. But was it? He didn't know her well enough yet to judge.

Her attitude at the tea table had openly invited him to think what he liked. Did that mean that there was nothing about her visit to Vronski's rooms that called for concealment or that she did as she pleased and did not care whether it remained a secret or not? He had heard that girls in her position in America could get away with anything.

Suppose she was having an affair with Vronski? No, the idea was unthinkable, he assured himself. He could not even suppose it—not about Anne.

Mrs. Lucille Abrams and daughter of New York city have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Drucker, of The Overlook.

Miss Mildred Wagar entertained a number of her friends at her home on Hickory street, Saturday evening.

Mrs. William Carman has returned to her home here after a week's visit with her daughter, Edna, in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McClay and son, Robert, of Coxsackie, spent the week-end with friends and relatives in New York city.

Attorney and Mrs. Vernon J. Kelder spent the holiday week-end with the latter's mother, Mrs. Mabel Schoonmaker, in New York city.

Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Papurt of the State School, Orange county, were visitors in town on Sunday.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Jan. 9, 1917.—Hallser & Friedman of New York leased Ginsburg building, Broadway and West Union street, for waist factory.

Joel Christiana rendered unconscious in fall from roof of building on North Front street on which he was working.

Mrs. Hanna Catherine Sickler, 70, found dead on floor of kitchen at her home in Centerville, where she lived alone.

Jan. 9, 1927.—Hugh McMunn, a former resident, died in hospital in New Brighton, S. I., from injuries sustained in an auto accident.

Death of Mrs. George M. Kinsmens of Washington avenue.

Jerome Aley of High Falls died.

Death of Fredolia Mott in West Saugerties.

Joseph Peterson, a farmer at Spring Glen, found frozen to death under a bridge on the road to Summitville.

It's a dry winter and Leadville, Col., two miles high, is ready to steam heat its water pipes to keep them from freezing. Because of lack of snow, frost threatens to reach the pipes, buried seven feet. But if it does the city engineer will turn steam into the mains and the mining folk hereabouts will find warm water in their cold water faucets.

Besides being annoying, floor squeaks are frequently an indication of weakness in the floor structure. The location and elimination of floor squeaks should be made as soon as they develop.

In County Granges

Rosendale.

The regular monthly meeting of the Rosendale Grange will be held on Monday, January 11, and the meeting will start at 8 o'clock.

The lecturer's hour will be on "Winter Sports." A very popular subject just now with so many people in this vicinity who are sport enthusiasts. The new lecturer, Miss Louise Rossier, will have charge of the program.

The refreshment committee include Mr. and Mrs. Neal Hotaling, Ruth Hotaling, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Terhune, Mrs. L. G. Rymph, Marguerite and Kenneth Randegger, Mrs. Seth Rowe, Mrs. Katherine Craig, Mrs. May Krom, Donald Krom and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dittmar.

At the last meeting the Grange celebrated with their annual Christmas party and every one attending brought a gift for under the Christmas tree and a package for the baskets which are given to those less fortunate ones who need a little cheer and encouragement. The service and hospitality committee had charge of these particular presents and were distributed the next day and were greatly appreciated by those who received them. The usual good time of dancing, bingo, etc., were enjoyed after the refreshments.

Due to the illness of the lecturer the program planned was somewhat changed and at this short notice Henry Mollenhauer took charge and arranged a very pleasing program.

Christmas Carols ..... Grange
At Christmas ..... Edgar Guest
R. Gordon Relyea
Two solos ..... Jean Van Nosdall
Stunt—Horse Race, won by Mrs. Vaughn.
Piano Solo .. Mrs. C. I. LeFevre, Jr.
Poem ..... Henry Mollenhauer
Christmas Carols ..... Grange

The hall was beautifully decorated with evergreens, lights, blazing fireplace and a huge Christmas tree. The committee in charge of decorations are to be commended on their splendid work. The chairman of the refreshment committee, Mrs. C. Van Nosdall, had each officer's station decorated with evergreen and a large red candle which made a very pretty setting when the last carol, Silent Night, was sung by candle light. Thus another year of Grange work in Rosendale goes into Grange history. This has been an eventful year for Rosendale Grange with the purchasing of their new home and the enthusiasm of its members, the way new members are joining and now the beginning of another year with many opportunities waiting for the new officers and new committees of 1937.

The service and hospitality committee will sponsor a card party in the Grange Hall on Thursday, January 14. Games will begin at 8:20 o'clock. There will be favors and refreshments. A large attendance is looked for and the usual good time is promised all who attend. Don't forget the date, January 14.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Humming away on a musty side street in Jersey City is a little barbwire-enclosed factory which suddenly has become a sort of "Sarajevo incident" from which may spring not war, but machinery for peace.

The assassination at Sarajevo precipitated the World war. The discovery that one Robert Cuse, naturalized American, was fitting out planes in his little Jersey City factory to ship to Spain, has precipitated more energetic stirrings for safer neutrality than this country has felt since the World war.

Its immediate effect is to give President Roosevelt a lever such as he has not had before to pry from Congress a neutrality act that better fits his own views. He wants the President to have greater discretionary authority than the present neutrality act gives him.

• • •

Helpless in Civil War

AS IT stands now, he can embargo shipments of arms and war instruments, such as planes, only when two or more nations are at war. The Spanish civil war left him helpless. He could not act against Robert Cuse by direct force of law even though the projected shipment of planes to Spain should upset whatever hopes European nations had of sealing the Spanish flames away from the European powder barrel.

With the typical Roosevelt facility for finding a nail to hit on the head when he wants to hit one, the President took up the case of Robert Cuse and his planes.

The insistent opposition he met last session to granting him the wider discretion he sought in applying neutrality regulation already had made itself widely heard before opening of the new congress. Immediately that opposition had to take into consideration the new weapon the President had found.

Of course, there was talk of going only so far as to extend the neutrality act to cover civil wars. But those who tried last session to put across the President's desire for more latitude in meeting unexpected situations, such as the Spanish affair, have begun talking more confidently this time of taking away some of the limiting features of the law.

• • •

Real Score

UNDER the present law the President is compelled to embargo arms when he finds there is war between two or more nations. Now there is rising talk of giving him authority to impose embargoes only when he deems it wise in the interest of preserving peace. It was just such authority he invoked in the Paraguay-Bolivia case under a different law, and the supreme court approved his course.

Opposition to granting greater latitude to the President hasn't melted, by any means. Some members of congress suspect the public got a real score out of the Cuse case and will speak loudly for tighter and higher walls of neutrality to safeguard the country.

Unmistakable, in any event, is the influence of Mr. Cuse and his airplanes toward revising the nation's peace machinery, regardless of whether it takes the form of freeing the President's hand or of backing, badger-like, deeper into a hole of isolation.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Shifting The Blame

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

With the denial of will as a factor in life, the blame for all the children's shortcomings and failures is once more laid squarely upon the parents. Everything that a child does in later life is due to his upbringing, his early environment, his "conditioning," and if all else fails, to his inheritance. Apparently the individual has no power of choice and action, and hence no responsibility.

At this stage of man's knowledge there is no way of deciding whether the theory is true or not. If it is true, life becomes merely mechanical functioning, and men are reduced to robots. Of course, however, the parents under this system are not to blame for what they did to the children. They too were "conditioned" by their origins and training.

No wonder that with such theories to back them, the world is overrun with irresponsible youngsters, many of them advanced enough in years to be called responsible. The doctrine of "passing the buck" to the past leads to a pernicious fatalism, more harmful even than the doctrine of predestination.

Though our forebears preached predestination, they did not carry the teaching to its logical conclusion. Man might be predestined, but he was brought up to be responsible for his acts. Free will was questioned, but for the sake of present comfort children were trained to obey. Duty and self-control were the guiding principles of life.

The world might be a more comfortable place to live in, if once more the children were burdened with the weight of their own shortcomings. It is too easy to shift the blame to others. Somewhere it must settle, and we might as well let it settle here as shift it 10 generations back.

Sundown Stories

In The Morning

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NOT another word was said by the snow man, nor did he repeat the one constant cry he had made of "Mama, Mama, Mama!"

"I'm sorry I hurt your feelings, Mr. Snow Man," Rip said. But the snow man only looked at Rip out of his coal eyes. Rip felt now that those eyes looked very sad.

Rip was feeling very chilled, and he jumped up and down and ran around the snow man to get warm again. The first signs of dawn were coming over the Puddle Muddle hills. Rip heard some one at the up-stairs window of Willy Nilly's house.

"Is that you, Christopher Columbus Crow? Do you want to come in?" asked Willy Nilly.

"It's not Christopher," barked Rip. "I'm outside."

"Whatever are you doing out so early?" asked Willy Nilly. "It's not nearly time to get up."

"I know," said Rip. "I've been here most of the night I think."

"Whatever made you go out into the cold?" Willy Nilly asked.

"I'd like to come in now," said Rip. "I opened the latch to let myself out but the door closed after me."

"I'll come down and let you in at once," said Willy Nilly.

When he opened the door and Rip ran in, Willy Nilly exclaimed:

"You're so cold, Rip! I must give you some hot milk at once and rub you well so you won't catch cold. Then you can explain everything that puzzles me."

But first Rip was rubbed until he felt warm, and the hot milk soothed him.

"I heard the snow man crying and so I went out," he said.

"What!" shouted Willy Nilly.

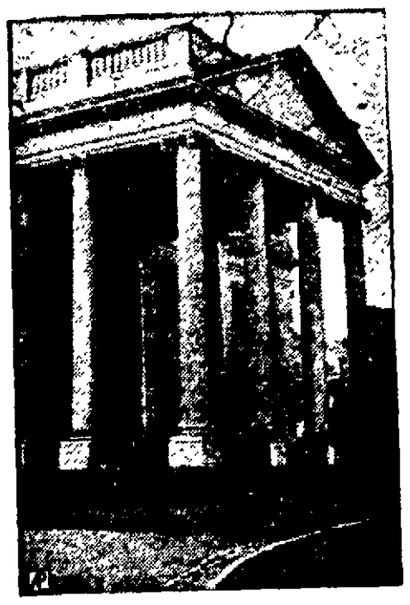
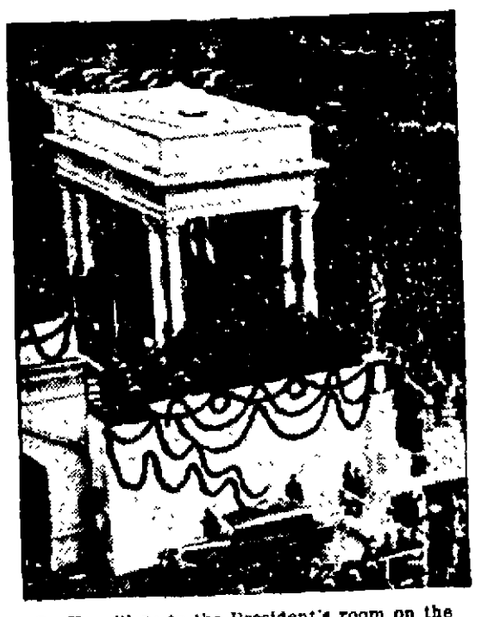
INAUGURATION PREVIEW:

Here Is Routine F. D. R. Will Follow As He Starts Second Term Jan. 20



1. At 11:45 a. m. on January 20 President Roosevelt will leave the White House and drive down Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol, arriving there around 11:50.



2. He will go to the President's room on the senate side and there remain in seclusion until 11:59 when he will proceed to the inaugural stand facing the plaza on the capitol's east front.

3. At 12 noon he will raise his right hand and take the oath of office from Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, duplicating this 1933 scene. Immediately thereafter he will deliver his inaugural address. The length of time it will consume is not known. The nation will listen closely for indications of his future policies.

4. After the address he will motor back to the White House via Pennsylvania avenue and lunch while the inaugural parade is forming.

5. At about 1:30 he will appear in the Presidential stand before the White House to review the parade. A reception and an inaugural concert complete the day.

Ladies of the church will serve a lunch of fruit cup, pot roast of beef, brown gravy, mashed potatoes, buttered onions, beets, rolls, jelly, chilli sauce, apple pie, coffee, and, anyone wishing is welcome to come in for the lunch.

One has only to look around any growing community today and see a legion of opportunities in retail lines for young men and women who are willing to work, and realize that riches can't be earned overnight. Even as changing times made necessary big business combinations to serve the public, so the evolutionary process has created a hundred opportunities for small retail businesses where one existed a generation ago.

Kingston Post Meeting Sunday

There will be a meeting of all members of Kingston Post, American Legion, interested in membership Sunday, January 10, at 3 p. m. Membership Chairman John J. Melville requests a large attendance. Plans will be formulated to increase the membership to equal the record year of 738 members during the commandership of Mayor C. J. Heiselman. The present membership of the post is 577 and exceeds the second largest membership ever acquired by the post. During the term of Morton Finch as commander the post had a paid up membership of 569. Both Past Commanders Heiselman and Finch will cooperate with Commander Roedell in his effort to set a new mark.

Commander Roedell has accounted for over 350 members personally. Due to the splendid work on membership by the local post the Ulster county organization now stands third in the state on a percentage basis of quotas assigned. Department Commander Clancy set the Ulster county quota at 750. On January 2 the county had a membership of 777 for a percentage of 1.0360. The state had on January 2 a membership of 41,940, an increase of 7,124 over 1936. At the Sunday meeting lists of ex-service men will be available.

National Leaders Plan Gigantic Ball to Honor President and Raise Infantile Paralysis Fund

A group of protegees of the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation, where infantile paralysis sufferers are treated. Below, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose birthday January 30 is inspiration for the nation-wide parties to raise funds for the fight against infantile paralysis, and Colonel Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the ball for the fourth year.

The nation's biggest social event, the celebration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's fifty-fifth birthday anniversary, is set for January 30, with more than 5,000 communities throughout the country planning parties to raise funds for the philanthropy closest to the Chief Executive's heart, and for infantile paralysis sufferers.

Colonel Henry L. Doherty, for the fourth year chairman of the national celebration, is being assisted by many of the country's foremost leaders in plans for the events. Among those on his committee are: Vincent Astor, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, Will H. Hays, Carl Byoir, general director, Colonel Edward M. House, Edsel B. Ford, Walter P. Chrysler, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Bishop William T. Manning, Harvey S. Firestone, Keith Morgan, General John J. Pershing, Owen D. Young, Howard Chandler Christy, Charles G. Dawes and Admiral Cary T. Grayson.

Society leaders, radio, motion picture and theatrical stars are joining forces to make the celebrations the greatest series of parties ever staged.

Meantime in cities, towns and hamlets throughout the nation millions of Americans are making preparations for parties that will eclipse in size and colorful entertainment those of any previous year.

"Oh, mamma, look!" cried the little girl on her visit to the country. "There's a duck. And it walks just like it just got out of a rumble seat."

This was snipped from the Boston Transcript: "A man accused of breaking up the home of another need not be too seriously condemned these days. He might have just bumped into the trailer."

A motorist passing through a small town in Scotland was stopped for speeding:

Dusty Pedestrian—Because I'm carrying a stick of dynamite in my pocket.

All we've got so say is that what some people don't know about driving an automobile would fill a morgue.

From some where we read that if not another mile of highway were built in the United States, just maintaining those roads we already have would cost around $400,000,000 a year.

Never disengage the clutch until just before the car comes to a stop, says a motoring expert. And a local man goes farther and says: "Young people would be wiser to wait until the car actually stops before they go into the clutch."

HEM AND AMY. THE MASTER MIND— By Frank H. Beck.

THAT DOOR DOESN'T CLOSE GOOD-- WILL YOU FIX IT, HEM?
SURE.
HM-M-M-M- I GUESS THAT LOCK NEEDS TO COME OUT AND BE CLEANED-
IT WOULDN'T DO ANY HARM TO TAKE THOSE HINGES APART AND OIL THEM GOOD.
I'LL TELL YOU AMY, I'LL GET MY TOOLS TOGETHER AND A FEW THINGS FROM THE HARDWARE STORE, AND--
OH-- OUT OF THE WAY--AND I'LL DO IT MYSELF--THIS KNOB IS LOOSE--THERE-- IT'S ALL FIXED--

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

Time is Eastern Standard.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Plans in the making for the microphone recital of President Roosevelt's reinauguration on January 20 call for approximately ten hours of broadcasting that day from the nation's capital. Included are to be the parade, the inauguration itself and the numerous other activities, winding up at night with an hour of the inaugural concert by the National Symphony and four operatic stars. All network groups, NBC, CBS, MBS and Intercity, will set aside regular programs for the broadcast.

Clara, Lu and Em never will be the same three comedy gossipers of the radio again. Death has interfered. His victim was Lu, in private life Mrs. Howard Berolzheimer. Pneumonia was the principal cause.

ON THE SATURDAY NIGHT LIST:

WEAF-NBC—7:15, Hampton Singers; 8, Saturday Night Party; 9, 11:30, Harold Stern's Orchestra.

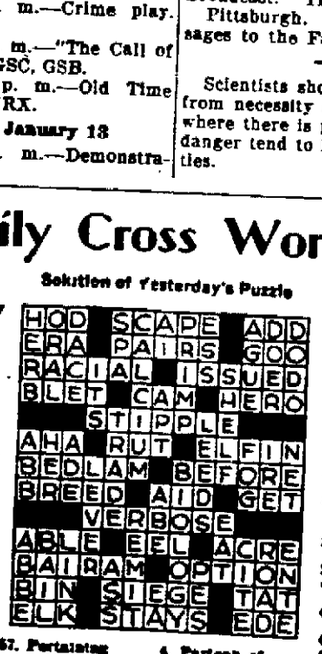
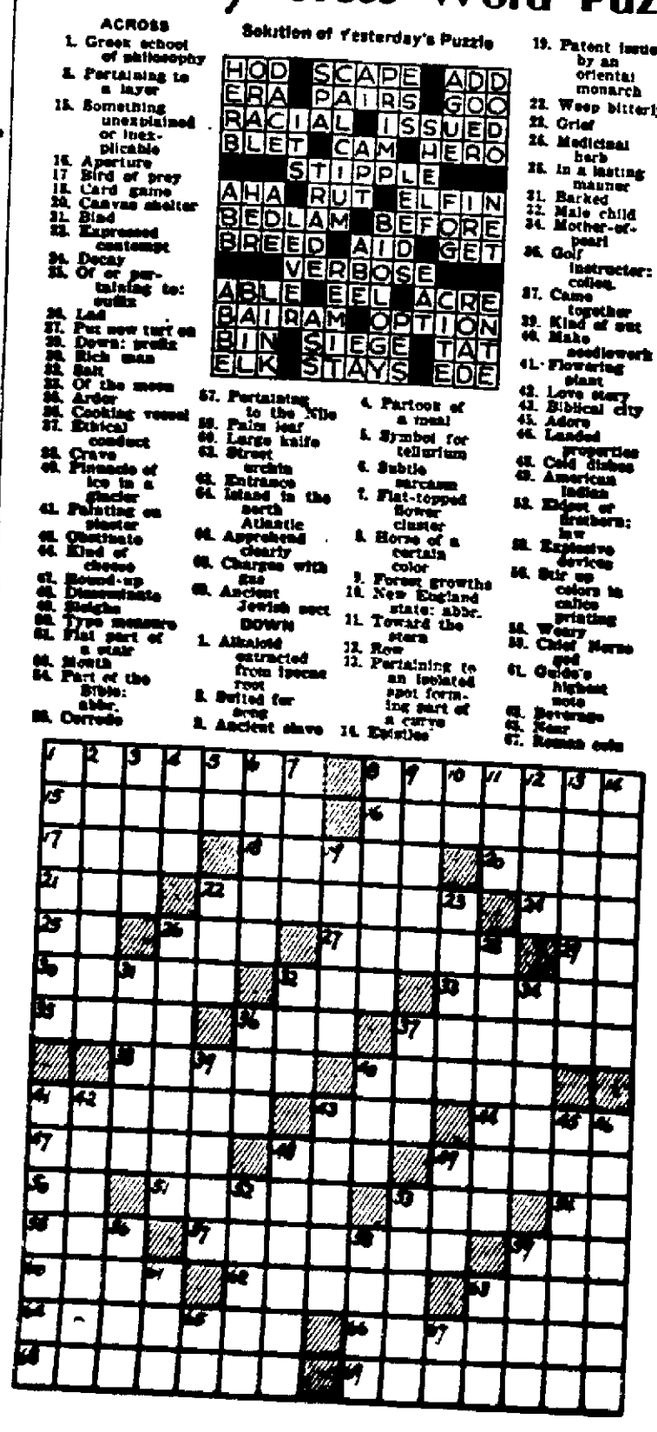
Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle





FLATBUSH

Flatbush, Jan. 8.—With the reopening of schools after the Christmas vacation, a number of the young people who spent the holidays with their parents at their homes here have returned to their respective schools. Miss Mildred Davis has returned to New Paltz, where she attends the New Paltz Normal School. Miss Elizabeth Ryder, who attends Beaver College, has returned to Jenkinstown, Pa. Miss Gladys Klothe, who attends Grace Institute, has returned to Manhassett, L. I. Miss Wilma Jones, who is a student nurse at the Long Island College Hospital, has returned to Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Osterhoudt and Mrs. Clara Osterhoudt were Christmas guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lyons and family.

John Edinger was a Christmas guest at the home of his daughters, Miss Virginia and Miss Charlotte, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Kukuk.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry France and daughter, Carol, and Mr. and Mrs. John Dimmler, Jr., of Poughkeepsie were Christmas guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dimmler, Sr.

James Kaye of Jersey City spent the New Year's week-end with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Falk.

Richard Kukuk of Albany spent the New Year's week-end with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kukuk.

A number of young people from here attended the 4-H Old Clothes Party and supper held at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall. Among those who attended were: The Misses Wilma Jones, Virginia and Charlotte Edinger, Gladys Klothe, Carolyn Ryder and Kathryn Kosnoski; also Breier Ducker, Clinton Lasher and Charles Luddeke.

George Wodeschek is ill with the grip at his home.

The T. X. T. Club held its regular Christmas meeting on December 29. Brother George Doll presented the club's president, Brother Harry Carle, with a special Christmas gift from the club members in appreciation of his untiring work and interest in the club. Dancing which followed was greatly enjoyed by all. Delicious sandwiches and coffee were served by the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. John Belene and Mr. and Mrs. Grover Lasher and son, Clinton, were Christmas guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Doll.

William Swart is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moak are ill at their home, "The Cottage", at St. George's Camp. Friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Doll and daughter, Barbara, and Mr. and Mrs. John Belene were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Lasher on New Year's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen of Williston Park, L. I., were holiday guests at the home of Mrs. Allen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Klothe.

Friends of Mr. Klothe are glad to know that he is feeling better and hope for a continued improvement.

The members of the 4-H Pioneer Club were entertained at a buffet supper on December 28 by their leader, Miss H. Thomas. After supper the evening was spent quilting and playing games. The girls all had a delightful time and wished Miss Thomas and Miss Cheshire a very Happy New Year.

The week of prayer is being observed by members of the Flatbush Reformed Church. Prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson on Monday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Osterhoudt on Tuesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nichols of Lake Katrine on Wednesday. On Friday evening the prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, and on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ketterson. The meetings will start at 7:30 o'clock. Musical Afternoon

At the regular meeting of the Young Married Women's Club held on Thursday afternoon, January 7, at the Y. W. C. A., a very delightful program entitled, "The Old and the New in Music", was arranged by Mrs. William MacGregor Mills. Because of illness Mrs. Mills herself was unable to attend and Mrs. Mortimer Downer read an interesting paper on music which Mrs. Mills had prepared. The program for the afternoon was as follows:

Sonata ..... Mozart
A piano solo played by Miss Marian Steketee, a pupil of Miss Schmidtkonz
A group of German numbers sung by Mrs. Mortimer Downer, contralto soloist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Raymond H. Rignall
(a) Dedication ..... Franz
(b) Hedgeroses ..... Schubert
(c) Out of My Soul's Great Sadness. Franz
A group of piano solos by Donald Hicks, a pupil of Walter Kidd
(a) Garden in the Rain ..Debussy
(b) Lento ..... Cyril Scott
A group of soprano solos by Miss Dorothea Groves, a pupil of Leonard Stine. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rignall
(a) The Star ..... Rogers
(b) In the Luxembourg Gardens .. Manning
(c) He's Such a Lil' Fellow ..... Dichmont
C Minor Prelude ..... Sergei Rachmaninoff
A piano solo by Miss Marion Steketee

Illness prevented Harold Campbell and Miss Betty Matthews, violinists, from taking part in the program.

At the close of the program the group enjoyed a social at which tea was served. Mrs. Harry Sweeney acted as hostess for the afternoon.

Supper Dance

Plans are under way for a pre-Lenten supper dance to be held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel on Saturday evening, January 23. Roger Baer's orchestra of seven pieces will furnish the music. Supper will be served at midnight by the hotel management. Every effort is being made by the committee to make the dance a social success. The proceeds will go toward furthering the work of the Kingston Junior Municipal Band and Orchestra which has accomplished so much in the way of creating a greater musical interest in the community.

The following group of women comprise the committee which is arranging the dance: Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Raymond Kraft, Mrs. Joseph Craig, Mrs. Leonard Flicker, Mrs. Raymond Gross, Mrs. John Gramer, Mrs. Walter Miller, Jr., Mrs. Roger Baer Schwartz and Mrs. Van Norstrand. Shandaken Ladies' Aid

Shandaken, Jan. 9—Seldom has the Ladies' Aid Society of Shandaken met under more auspicious and encouraging circumstances than it did on Thursday at the church hall. Not only is there a goodly sum in the treasury but the outlook for the future is bright and promising. Mrs. Van Bramer, Mrs. Amelia White and Mrs. Inda Miller served as hostesses. They accomplished a great deal most of which was preliminary work for the coming year preparing for the usual fair held during the summer which they expect will be the best ever and appointing the different committees for the work. With but few exceptions the entire membership was present as follows: Mrs. May Rowe, Mrs. Von Bramer, Mrs. Ellen Gulnick, Mrs. Tremain Hinkley, Mrs. Roxy Terry, Mrs. Nellie Dunham, Mrs. Maude Buley, Miss Ethel McLaughlin, Mrs. Cora Ford, Mrs. Clara Brown, Mrs. Mary A. Wood, Mrs. Grace Osterhoudt, Mrs. Mildred Rosa, Mrs. Amelia White, Mrs. Helen Holden, Mrs. Nita Rosa, Mrs. Edna Hummel, Mrs. Inda Miller, Mrs. Nettie Griffin and Mrs. Mason Grasso.

With Edward and Wally gone, British court society has a chance to get back to normal, but think what Dottie Gaus could do for it.

ALLIGERVILLE

Alligerville, Jan. 9—Dinner guests at Mrs. Ida DeGroodt's home Sunday, January 3, were Mrs. George Bullis and son of Middletown, Arthur Caston, Mr. an dMrs. William Caston and daughters, June and Marilan, of Mountaindale, Mr. and Mrs. George Decker and son, Arthur, and Anna Hendrickson of Kerhonkson.

The members of the Ladies' Aid spent a busy afternoon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Trowbridge sewing rags for rugs they will have ready for their annual summer fair. At 6 o'clock supper was served. By this time the husbands and other members of the families had arrived so that a nice little gathering was there to enjoy all the good things which had been prepared. After supper the evening was pleasantly spent in playing games.

Seeks Statutory Decree

Lois Gertrude Relyea of Walden, who married George T. Relyea at that village in 1933 seeks a decree of divorce on statutory grounds and asks the Supreme Court to permit her to resume her maiden name of Lois Gertrude Babcock. Earl Houghtaling appeared for Mrs. Relyea. A witness testified that in December of 1936 he and Relyea went to Middletown and had a few drinks at a place and then the bartender directed them to a sporting house on Fulton street. Acts which the witness certified to were the basis of the action for divorce.

Members of the Forest Hills country club, Augusta, Ga., erected a monument to the tee at the fifth hole of the course to perpetuate the memory of a double eagle scored by Al Watrous.

Movies, Airplanes Inspire Designs For 1937 Frocks

INFLUENCE FROM PARIS

As modern as the New Year is this advance spring silk print inspired by the Paris Exposition of 1937. Its design, in green and beige tones, depicts the Eiffel Tower and exposition buildings. The bag and belt worn with the short sleeved frock are of green suede.

FROM THE SKY

A pattern of multi-colored airplanes covers this dark blue bolero frock. The blouse is red, the tasseled hat dark blue. The print designs are by Schiaparelli and all the dresses made by American designers.

FORMALITY—ON SILK

The black and white bow ties the modern Beau Brummel wears at night furnish the pattern for a deep gray silk crepe frock. White leather makes the bows which accent the belt and high neckline of the bodice. The same leather makes the bag. The hat is white straw.

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York, (AP).—New Year prints—modern as 1937—are out in new designs inspired by the "props" of modern life from cinemas to subways.

They are advance news in spring fashions, are stamped on a wide variety of "luscious" silks and are ready to wear under midseason coats to brighten wardrobes that have begun to sag under the winter strain. They come in vivid colors on dark backgrounds.

Some of the smartest, designed by Schiaparelli, are colorful geometric patterns of the Paris subway, the bridges which cross the Seine in the French capital or lengths of film covered with the signatures of motion picture stars.

The Paris Exposition of 1937 inspires another pattern which is splashed with designs of the Eiffel Tower and exposition buildings, while a second is patterned with colorful airplanes and a third with the black and white bow ties the modern Beau Brummel wears at night. Designs of mushrooms, vegetables and strawberries make other bright prints for advance spring wear.

Gay Patterns And Hues

The new silk prints generally show gay patterns and vivid colors. They are splashed with a number of hues and are printed on a wide variety of weaves, such as twills, toiles, mousselines, chiffons, taffetas, and crepes.

Huge floral patterns appear in the prints for evening wear, which generally favor black or white grounds. The engraving technique is also making itself felt in evening silks which come with colored backgrounds traced with delicate pen-line patterns.

Petal Plaids

Prints for day wear show geometric floral patterns such as leaf or petal plaids and checks. Prints suggesting tweeds or plaids and others patterned with Paisley and Cashmere shawl designs are likewise smart. The coronation influence is reflected in crown, scroll and feather patterns, while the vogue for color manifests itself again in silks splashed with ballet dancers, athletes and Chinese figures.

Solid color silks are also important in advance spring showings.

Helps For Housewives

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

In cleaning enamel and porcelain bathroom articles be careful not to use too strong a solution of cleaning material. One cause of difficulty in removing water stains from porcelain tubs may be found in the fact that the finish has been partially removed by too severe cleansing. In such cases a mild cleanser applied with a soft cloth will be as effective as necessary.

Thin slices of lemons, oranges, limes or grapefruit, sprinkled with sugar and boiled 10 minutes, make effective and tasty garnishes for roasts or fowls. Red or green jelly dotted on top of the slices, gives added color and flavor.

To give a different flavor to doughnuts, add one-half a stick of cinnamon and four whole cloves to the fat used for frying. Fat utilized in this manner, however, will only be good for croquettes, fritters or other fried delicacies.

When only very fresh bread is available for sandwiches, chill the bread as long as posible in the refrigerator. Then use a sharp knife to cut thin slices. It is best to spread both slices of bread with butter, since the butter serves as a coating and prevents the filling from soaking into the bread. Soften butter used for sandwiches by creaming it with a fork. Melting the butter makes it too greasy.

For making colored sugars to decorate cookies add a little food coloring to a small amount of sugar sprinkled on a shallow dish. When the sugar and coloring are well blended spread the mixture in a thin layer on the cookie after the cookie is baked. Colors applied before baking are apt to disappear during the cooking process.

When decorations are added to cookie dough—such as dates or nuts—press them well down into the dough. Otherwise they may come off during the baking.

COOKING SUGGESTIONS

Pie crust shrinks when it is baked. So press it well into the corners of the pan and allow it to extend beyond the edges.

Sliced Brazil nuts blend well with celery and fruits for salads or desserts.

Chocolate and orange flavors blend well. Add orange extract to chocolate frosting or candy. Try covering a chocolate cake with orange frosting.

To keep the pie crust in custard pie from becoming "soggy" is often a problem. Try baking the crust for ten minutes in a moderate oven before adding the filling. Then test the crust to see if it is of the right consistency. This suggestion may be followed with other one-crust, unbaked pies.

To make tasty tea biscuits add chopped candied fruit peel to your regular biscuit dough. The fruit may be placed inside or on top of the mixture before it is baked. Candied ginger may be used in the same way.

Experts Prove New Glazed Pots Better Than Old Type

Indoor gardeners will be interested in recent experiments conducted at an Eastern university which have disproved the need for the old-fashioned clay pot for house plants.

Instead the more attractive glazed pottery and metal containers are advocated, not only because they are more beautiful and will not leave moisture on window sills and furniture, but because the plants grow better in them.

This sounds like heresy to oldtime gardeners, yet they are accepting it willingly because it adds beauty and utility to their pot plants and provides an easier method of handling them.

Attractive novelty containers for house plants are now made in great variety. With glazed or metal containers less water is needed, because it does not drain off through a bottom hole or through porous sides. The argument for healthier plant growth, according to Prof. L. H. Jones of Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, is that no sucking action takes place inside the pot to draw the roots outward to the pot's rough and sometimes hot surface, as happens with the porous pot. His experiments show that the porous pot does not aerate the soil through its sides as previously thought, but only on the surface of the soil, which gives no advantage over the non-porous pot.

The moisture tight container opens up new decorative uses for house plants, particularly those which need little sun such as the sansevieria and the ivy, which can be grown on the mantlepiece or a corner table with practically no sun.

The new plant containers are made in a variety of shapes. Dogs, elephants, and other animals are simulated, with plants seemingly growing out of their backs. A group of cacti, or succulents, will make an attractive planting for these ornaments. Other containers are made as book-ends, wall-vases, horns of plenty, indeed almost anything you could imagine.

Hard Work, A Little Tact, Will Help You Hold A Job

By JOAN DURHAM.

There's a double secret for success in any job—hard work and tact.

A nice appearance . . . liking the people you work with—even if it's an effort at first . . . a pleasant attitude . . . all these factors play their parts. But the most important thing is to do your job well and, at the same time, be considerate of others.

There are five "do's" for the employe who is eager to make the most of her job. They are:

(1) Work hard. But try to organize your job so that you will follow a reasonable routine. However, if odds and ends begin to accumulate don't let them slide from day to day. Clean them up.

(2) Attend to your own part of the job. Don't subject others to your opinion too frequently. And don't betray department or office secrets.

(3) Study your superior and the others with whom you work, and use a little tact when you're dealing with them. Remember that you are part of a whole and you're expected to keep your section of the machinery running smoothly. The best way to do that is to "click" with your partners in work.

(4) Refrain from interrupting the office routine of those about you. And don't allow them to confuse your routine with dozens of side issues.

(5) Keep yourself well groomed. A powder puff can make or break you. Take plenty of time using it when you dress in the morning—so continuous reapplications won't have to be made during the day.)

For the employer who's anxious to get the best results out of those who work for him there are also five do's:

(1) Insist on good work—and when you get it don't be afraid to say so.

(2) When you promise or threaten to do something, do it.

(3) Practice a little consideration for your employes. Put yourself out once in a while. It will pay you in the long run.

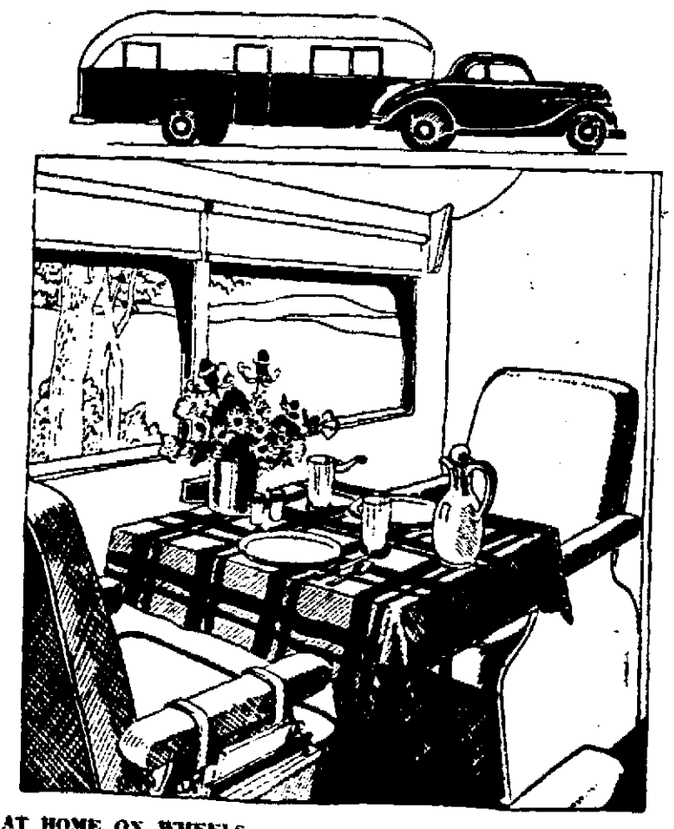
(4) Exercise your sense of humor. A good laugh from you every now and then will do more to relieve the tension than you know.

(5) Set a good example of politeness in your dealings with outsiders, remembering that your employes are apt to follow suit when you're out of the office.

Better results will be obtained from cookies which require rolling if the dough is chilled for several hours. (Even chilling them over night is not too long). A thorough chilling enables the dough to be handled more easily. The same practice was followed by grandmother who rolled out her dough on a large board and left it out of doors. When she brought it in she spent hours tracing around her paper patterns and using her cookie cutters.

To bring out the full flavor of raisins, dates, currants or figs soak them in a little boiling water for five minutes. Two tablespoonsful of boiling water for each half cup of fruit will be satisfactory.

Your Trailer Is Modern —Decorate It Like That



AT HOME ON WHEELS

Your streamlined trailer shouldn't be furnished like a permanent home or a Swiss chalet. Neutral and modern decorations give the best effect.

(Prepared by McCall Magazine for The Freeman)

By Mary Davis Gillies

It may be streamlined and be-gadgeted to the last inch, but a trailer is still akin to the gypsy cart and the covered wagon. It can be made into a home only if you don't treat it as if it were a large house.

You may still be in the dreaming-about-it stage of your trailer career, or you may be ready to buy one; but it isn't too soon to learn what mistakes to avoid.

A trailer isn't a Cape Cod cottage or a Swiss chalet or a California bungalow and there is no point in making it look any more like these things than in making it look like a brown derby. A trailer is a modern traveling device and its decoration should be modern, inside and out—not in some period of long ago.

And it isn't only a matter of decorative style—it's just as much a matter of comfort and livability. Modern fabrics and color schemes suggest maximum space and restfulness. Unless every care is taken with the decorations, a trailer will not only be cramped but will seem even more so than it really is.

Among the things which give exactly the wrong effect are bright checked linoleum on the floor, green woodwork, chintz curtains with fancy fringe and contrasting plaid upholstery.

In order to avoid that shut-in feeling, you should use neutral colors, with the least possible contrast. Light wood tones on the walls can be carried through the whole scheme, with inconspicuous floor linoleum in brown and beige, brown tones in the upholstery and, if you must have curtains, plain beige.

And such a scheme will also cut down the cleaning part of keeping house on wheels.

Grilled sandwiches are popular for informal supper or refreshments. The grilling may be accomplished by toasting or browning the sandwiches in a small amount of fat in a frying pan. Forks should be provided for eating grilled sandwiches.

Sliced bologna is a good garnish for tomato aspic salad. It is especially tempting when served with cocktails. Another appetizing salad to serve with cocktails may be made by peeling tiny tomatoes and stuffing the centers.

Don't Let 1937 Make You Tired

Ithaca, N. Y.—"Resolve not to become too tired this year," suggests the state college of home economics at Cornell University.

"Severe fatigue has toxic effects on the body, mind, and emotions. The symptoms of fatigue are: first, a pleasant feeling of stimulation that enables one to work well, and this feeling may lead a homemaker on to an excess of work until she is too tired to stop; second, comes a lack of ability to hold the attention on more than one thing, and this makes that one extremely important, as the desire to finish a big ironing instead of stopping when tired; and third, a loss of muscular control, as when eyes blur and fingers fail to make the thread go into the needle."

Preventing Fatigue

Ways to prevent fatigue are suggested by the college:

Strengthen the body by exercise; rest by change if fatigue is caused by lack of pleasant companionship, or boredom; practice deep breathing to get more oxygen which rids the body of fatigue poisons; change jobs or alternate work with rest periods; have rooms properly lighted to lessen eye-strain, which is one of the most frequent causes of fatigue; wear low-heeled comfortable shoes for housework.

Learn to use the thigh muscles to lift loads, to get up from chairs, and to carry heavy baskets; wear loose clothing that allows a free circulation of air around the body; change the air in rooms frequently; and see that the arrangement of kitchen equipment is comfortable and convenient.

Many women plan too much work for one day, and therefore they feel rushed all the time, the home economists have discovered. Some homemakers find that foot troubles keep them tired; others are over-weight or are in poor physical condition. A lack of rest periods during the day and worry are likewise common causes of fatigue.

Most of these causes can be controlled, and wise homemakers will look back over the past year to discover why they were tired. They will try to remove the causes and resolve not to become too fatigued in 1937. Their reward, says the college, will be an increased self respect, increased happiness for the family, improvement in their own dispositions, and an ability to accomplish more.

Making up your own pie crust "mix" will save you lots of time. Combine six cups of sifted flour with two cups of fat and one and one-half tablespoonsful of salt. Cover and store in a refrigerator. A one-crust pie will require one cup of the "mix" to which two tablespoonsful of cold water have been added. A two-crust pie will require one and one-half cups of the mixture. This "mix" will keep fresh for two weeks if it is stored in a very cold place.

Food Fixed Attractively Peps Up Sick Appetites

AID TO RECOVERY

Colorful dishes do much to brighten meals for the convalescent stay-at-home. A cherry gelatin sphere, flanked by three banana slices, makes an appetizing finish for a sick-room meal.

By Mrs. Alexander George

The preparation of foods which will appeal to the dormant appetites of a sick or convalescent member of the household will present a real problem for many mothers this winter.

They will find it difficult to vary the usual creamed foods which are not only monotonous for the patient but are even tiresome for the person who is preparing them.

Some ingenuity in providing interesting as well as proper foods for the invalid will seldom fail to stimulate the lagging appetites of members of the family who are recovering from prolonged illnesses.

Try Surprises

When our 11-year-old son was convalescing from scarlet fever we played a game in which I always added some "surprise" to his tray. Sometimes it was a little toy or a letter. Often it was food molded into an unusual shape. And still other times the surprise came in the bit of china in which his meal was served.

Fruit juices were poured into gaily-colored paper cups. (Incidentally, they are easy to dispose of and are, for that reason, very sanitary.) Dates and figs were added to breakfast cereals—with brown sugar sprinkled over the top. Toast and bread were cut into fancy shapes of all kinds.

Milk Toast Is Good

We discovered that milk toast, which is ordinarily far from alluring after it has been served a few times, became much more appetizing when it was combined with cooked asparagus, beans, mushrooms or hard-boiled eggs and topped with a mount of fluffy mashed potatoes.

We also tried out a number of varieties of frozen and gelatin desserts—which we found the whole family devoured. And we had a lot of fun adding chocolate, cocoanut, maple sugar, marshmallows and other delicacies to baked custards and cornstarch puddings.

In fact, we all decided that "sick dishes" weren't so bad after all.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Temper Tantrums Hinder the Child

Ithaca, N. Y.—Temper tantrums and other emotional upsets interfere not only with a child's development but also with the happiness of parents, says the New York state college of home economics.

According to the college, the following general rules may help to overcome and prevent emotional troubles in a child:

Know your child.

Know what can be expected at various stages of development and do not expect too much.

Know how to teach health habits.

Gain calm, patience, and serenity for yourself.

Provide good environment, companionship, adventure, experience, affection, recognition, and security for each child.

See that each child has a place of his own, treasures of his own, and time for his own activities.

Enlist the child's cooperation and confidence.

Give plenty of opportunity for self-expression through art, drama, music, dancing, writing, speaking, story telling, constructing, painting, modeling, reading, play and other activities.

When a special emotional handicap is present, look for the causes.

Every tantrum has a history. Find the beginning and how this behavior was learned.

Help the child to substitute desirable behavior through practice.

A Cornell bulletin, E-335, called "Making or Marring the Child's Personality through Emotional Experience," may be had from the Office of Publication, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, New York.

Canine Tonsilectomy

Nashville, Tenn.—Fritz, two-year-old, 120-pound shepherd dog, whimpered and fell over on his side.

His owner, Robert L. Goodpasture, called a veterinary who made a diagnosis of rheumatism and removed the dog's tonsils.

Goodpasture reported Fritz was "doing nicely."

76-Year-old Boxer

Greenville, S. C.—Charles R. McJunkin, 76, signed an entry blank to enter the American Legion boxing tournament.

McJunkin, a retired printer, challenged all comers between the ages of 70 and 100 in the featherweight division.

It's Revolution

Dallas, Tex.—E. E. Wallace, assistant juvenile officer, was escorting a young prisoner. They came to a revolving door.

Both went in all right, but they didn't come out like Wallace planned. Instead, they went round and came out right back where they started. But the boy was ahead of Wallace and got away.

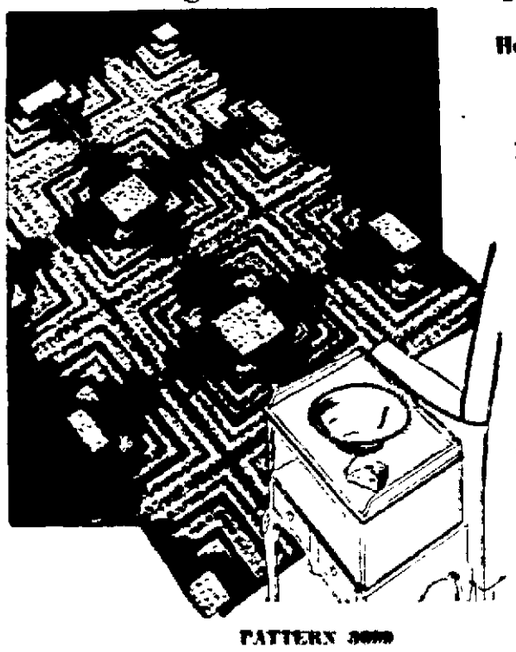
Kemmerer, Wyo.—Newt Sims got more than he bargained for. He ordered a pair of hounds from Evening Shade, Ark., to use trailing coyotes on his ranch.

The dogs, a male and female, arrived safely by express. But a few minutes afterward, Sims had seven dogs. Five of them were new-born pups.

Absent Minded

Janesville, Wis.—A rural youth took advantage of icy highways to skate to his high school in Janesville. Not until he arrived did he discover he had forgotten to bring his regular shoes.

Varied Rugs Made of Same Square



Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Same Square Makes Afghan and Pillow

PATTERN 5033

Why not give your floor a "square deal" by crocheting this striking rug? You'll love doing the simple 6 inch squares in varied colors, and they in turn, when joined, will form many a stunning pattern. Here's a thrifty way to turn useless rags into something worthwhile, though rug wool or candlewicking are also good. And you're sure to want to crochet a matching afghan and pillow too, from this design! In pattern 5033 you will find complete instructions and charts for making the square shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred), to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Union Hose Co. Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of Union Hose Co. No. 4 on Friday evening the following officers were elected for the year of 1937.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. Moran was reelected president; Robert Winchell was chosen foreman; Lyle Dimler, first assistant foreman, and Harry Hornbeck, Jr., second assistant foreman. John T. Henry was reelected secretary and Walter D. Henry treasurer. Robert Matthews was elected steward. The delegate to the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association is George Bilyou. Francis Cashin was reelected delegate to the Kingston Fire Fund Association.

Joseph F. Sullivan delivered an interesting address on the work of Union Hose Co. since its organization over 60 years ago and also mentioned that one member, Joseph Keegan, has served with the company for 51 consecutive years while another member, John McGrane, has been a member continuously since 1858, over 48 years.

Later in January these two members are to be guests of honor at a reception in the rooms of the company in commemoration of their length of service and also in celebration of the 60th anniversary of the company which occurred in October, 1936.

ASHOKAN

Ashokan, Jan. 8—Marvin B. Green visited Lake Katrine Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Elmendorf called on Miss Bertha Green Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kinney visited Kingston Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Carter and lady friend from Mt. Tremper, and Mr. and Mrs. Burr K. Elmendorf were among Kingston shoppers Tuesday.

Howard Brooks visited his mother, Mrs. Earl Elmendorf, in company with his aunt, Mrs. William E. Abbott, of Chelsea, Mass., over the New Year's holidays, returning home on Monday.

Frank Roosa of High Point Farm was a caller here Tuesday.

Stanley Jones, who spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Jones and family, returned to the Taylor University at Upland, Ind., Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Carter and Mrs. Mary Coons spent the day Wednesday with Mesdames Sarah and Mrs. Burr K. Elmendorf.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Kerr and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Eckert spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Hyser.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kinney called on Mrs. Earl Elmendorf and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green and son, Marvin, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Haver made a trip to Kingston Thursday.

Virginia and Burton Cudney of Pine Hill visited their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adsit, and cousins, John and Robert, in Shokan and they all drove to Palenville and visited their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Osterhoudt.

In the mop-up of the depression, it's surprising how often you read "Former Millionaire Leaves $5,000." And that's probably in some forgotten insurance policy.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Jan. 8.—The January meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Adsit, the presiding officer being Mrs. William Tucelling, newly elected president of the society. Following the singing of the hymn, "He Leadeth Me," and a Scripture reading from the Acts, reports were read by Mrs. Charles Giles, secretary, and Mrs. F. Adsit treasurer. The secretary's report revealed a total membership of 37 persons. A report of the committee on Christmas gift boxes showed a balance of $4.49 remaining in the Sunshine Fund. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. Leah Van Benschoten for the Christmas greeting sent by the members to Mrs. Van Benschoten in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Mrs. Frank Barringer of Shokan and Mrs. Bessie Davis of Ashokan were appointed a committee to arrange for a meat pie supper to be given in the church basement Friday evening, January 22, under the auspices of the Aid. Members attending the meeting were as follows: Mrs W. Tucelling, Mrs. C. Giles, Mrs. F. Adsit, Mrs. Aner Longyear, Mrs. Bessie Davis, Mrs. Daniel Sampson, Mrs. Homer Markle, Mrs. Clyde Winchell, Mrs. August Pfaus, Mrs. Neil Windrum, Mrs. F. Barringer and Mrs. Sarah Bell. Those who came as guests were Mrs. Philip Chopay, Miss Margaret Windrum and Sandra Pfaus.

Dog taxes are now being received by Reginald Davis, clerk of the town of Olive. Some of the money received from this source last year was used in reimbursing sheep raisers and poultrymen for loss of stock through the depredations of roving dogs.

Contractor Justus North has nearly completed an attractive and imposing chimney of native stone at the residence building being erected for Chester A. Lyons on Church Hill.

Construction work is progressing rapidly on the Brown Station Hill job near the Beaverkill stream. Hard-surfacing will be done on this road which previous to the Revolutionary War was a trail used by dispatch bearers between the forts in Shandaken and Delaware county and those at Hurley and Wiltwyck.

The Misses Ruth and Ann Didier have returned to their home in Flushing, L. I., after having visited their grandmother, Mrs. Aner Longyear, and aunt, Miss Edna Longyear.

A marriage of January, 1871, was that of Ezra T. Jones, Olive, to Elizabeth Moore, Hurley, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. H. C. Earl, pastor of the West Hurley M. E. Church, at the home of the bride's father.

Kenneth Barley, tax collector of Olive, will sit for the convenience of property holders of the First district as follows: January 16, at Grant DeSilva's, Boiceville, and January 26, at Winchell's store, Shokan.

The cafeteria supper and card party held by the Rebokahs following the lodge meeting Thursday night, was attended by a large number of persons, several of whom were from Shokan and Ashokan. As usual at these popular affairs, a bountiful supply of good things to eat was available, everything being prepared and arranged in a most tempting manner. Tables of bridge, pinochle and bingo were in progress until nearly midnight, at which time the refreshments were served. Residents of the twin villages attending the party included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Adsit, Miss Margaret Windrum, Ira Elmendorf, Homer Markle, Miss Edna Longyear, Mrs. Julius North, Fred Gulnack, Mrs. Chester Lyons and Miss Radie McCauley.

Reports from California experts say insects destroy more timber than lumbering and forest fires.

ANSWER TO SHOKAN CORRESPONDENT

It is quite obvious from the latest article of our Shokan Correspondent that while he likes to give it he can't take it. Had I been aware he possesses such a sensitive nature I would have held my response over as a New Year's greeting.

I am frank to say that it was necessary for me to make frequent use of a dictionary while reading his article. But even then I couldn't make head or tail of what he was driving at. And from the remarks of others it is apparent that few if any of our readers have any idea of what it is all about. So all I will say here, about the project under discussion is, that the old original road was where the new cut-off is at the present time and is not a forty-five degree angle or thereabouts.

Not having the benefit of a college education, nor the same opportunity of using the press, I am naturally at a disadvantage in carrying on such a discussion with my esteemed friend in Shokan. He may be a first-class writer, but he certainly knows nothing about road construction work. And incidentally, Mr. Correspondent, the Town of Olive has the reputation of having the best roads in Ulster County. This is not ego but a plain statement of fact and wide general knowledge.

I am well aware that a person in public life is subject to criticism, some just, but more often most of it unjust. And I always welcome receiving constructive criticism, but it should be constructive and not merely faultfinding with things about which one has neither knowledge nor experience.

Superintendent of Highways, Town of Olive.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 9. (AP).—Selected Steels and Specialties continued to push upward in today's stock market, but offerings in other categories were sufficient to put the brakes on the advance.

Efforts to settle the General Motors strike apparently were making little headway and many traders decided to cash in profits that had piled up during the past few sessions. Selling was well absorbed in most instances, however, and few weak spots were in evidence.

The rapid churning movement put the ticker tape behind occasionally and transfered approximated 1,400,000 shares. While the major motor stocks were little better than even during the greater part of the session, Yellow Truck was a star performer with a gain of about two points at the best. While motors also tilted forward

Up fractions to two were Vanadium, Bethlehem, Gulf States Steel, Omnibus, International Agricultural Corp., Pullman, Inspiration Copper, Magma Copper, Standard Oil of N. J., Western Union, Union Pacific, Houston Oil, Aviation Corp., North American Aviation, Douglas Aircraft and United Aircraft.

In a restricted groove were U. S. Steel, Goodyear, General Motors, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, North American, Public Service of N. J., General Electric, Paramount and Warner Bros.

Brakeman is Killed

Lancaster, Mo., Jan. 9 (AP).—A Wabash engine and four cars of a freight train plunged off ice-clogged rails at Glenwood, Mo., today, killing Brakeman R. Q. Spencer. W. L. Wadsworth, engineer, was injured. He was taken to a hospital at Moulton, Iowa.

Expansion Shown In Retail Trade

Retail trade reports of chain and mail order firms show expansion in rate of improvement in December Sales topped like months' total in 1935 by 19.1 per cent, against a November gain of 11.6 per cent over November, 1936.

Payments by retail firms featured yesterday's dividend declarations. Federated Department Stores voted 50 cents; Interstate Department Stores, $2.25; Abraham & Straus 25 cents; Bloomingdale, 10 cents; McLellan Stores, 75 cents; William Filene's Sons, 20 cents. On second preferred Associated Dry Goods resumed payments with a $1.75 declaration.

Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. declared $1 cash dividend on common, plus one share of common for each three shares held.

General Motors December domestic retail sales, covering period just prior to curtailment of shipments to dealers because of labor troubles, totaled 173,472 units, 42 per cent above the December, 1935, total, which had represented the high record for that month in any year. Figures indicate new high record sales at the peak period this year, provided cars are available.

Zinc price was advanced yesterday 15 points to 4.60 cents a pound. East St. Louis Copper on the London Metal Exchange hit 12.275 cents a pound. Volume of securities trading here again increased and prices rose.

Administration budget reveals that in year beginning July 1 Treasury may be able to reduce by more than $1,000,000,000 the amount of government securities held by private and international investors.

Bethlehem Steel is investing $70,000,000 in new equipment. President E. G. Grace states. He termed the past year, "one of encouragement," stressed satisfactory relations between management of the company and employes.

Machine tool makers in Cincinnati area entered 1937 with enough orders to keep operations at present rates through first quarter; manufacturers foresee further price increases this year.

In year ended November 30, 1936, American Gas & Electric reported net equal to $2.22 a common share, vs. $1.84 in previous year.

Net for 1936 of American Brake Shoe is estimated at between $2.80 and $3 a common share against $1.70 in 1935.

Walgreen's record sales in December indicate net in quarter ended December 31 of 85 to 90 cents a common share, vs. 70 cents in like period year before.

Mahar Appears on Contempt Charge

Joseph A. Mahar appeared in person before Justice Schirick Friday in an application made by Mrs. Hilda A. Mahar to have the defendant punished for contempt of court for failure to make payments as directed by the court for the support of his family.

He told the court he had no attorney but was considering getting one. Justice Schirick warned the defendant that the charge was a serious one and one in which he would not deal lightly if it were found there had been a deliberate effort to evade the court's direction.

He suggested that Mahar get a lawyer and appear at 10 o'clock today, ready to go on with the motion. Chris. J. Flanagan appeared for Mrs. Mahar.

The court directed that any attorney which Mahar might get should be prepared to serve his answering affidavits on plaintiff's attorney by 9:30 o'clock today.

Mrs. Catt Enters 79th Year Today In Happy Mood

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER

New Rochelle, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, veteran fighter for woman suffrage, began her 79th year today, optimistic because the human race "is moving onward and upward, although sometimes we behave very badly."

Active and alert, she was up at 7:30 a. m., but said she wasn't going to celebrate the birthday because "78 isn't a particularly interesting age."

"My health is pretty good for an old lady," smiled Mrs. Catt, preparing to go to New York for lunch with some old friends in the suffrage movement.

A long chat with Miss Alda Wilson, her companion for nine years, began the day. There were pink and white carnations at the breakfast table, and a pile of congratulatory telegrams.

"The bad behavior of a part of the human race in Spain is a cause for distress," said Mrs. Catt, who has worked in behalf of peace for many years.

"But I still think we should feel optimistic. The desire of nations to rush into a general war seems to be increasing."

Women haven't quite yet found their rightful place in the world, she said, and "it probably will take another generation or two."

"I am neither disappointed nor encouraged about the participation of women in public affairs. They are behaving just as I thought they would."

Mrs. Catt said she is "trying hard to be retired," but she isn't succeeding very well.

She is called on to make speeches, and her opinions are sought. This year she will attend, for the twelfth time, a national conference on the cause and cure of war.

Would she like to live to be 100? "Oh no," said Mrs. Catt. "I don't want to lose my joy in life, as one is likely to when he gets very old."

TWO HIGH SCHOOL BOYS RESCUE LAD FROM CREEK

Wednesday afternoon as Emory Woolsey of 103 Clinton avenue and Floyd Hummel of Prospect street, both students at the Kingston High School, were walking along the Rondout creek dock front near the Forst plant they saw a boy about 15 years of age about to jump from the deck of a barge to the ice.

They called to him that the ice was not strong enough to hold him, but the boy jumped and broke through. Unable to swim the boy called for aid and the two high school students rescued him and brought him safely to shore.

The boy was so frightened that he failed to reveal his name, and ran home.

Awaits Kidnaped Boy

Mrs. Gus Appelman, school teacher of 10-year-old Charles Mattson, anxiously awaited his release by his kidnaper so he could return to her class in Tacoma. Her husband has been mentioned as a possible intermediary. (Associated Press Photo)

Mattson Seeks To Prevent Theft Of Ransom Cash

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 9 (AP).—Dr. W. W. Mattson sought today to prevent "hi jacking" of the $28,000 ransom demanded by the kidnaper of his son, Charles, 10, held for the 13th day.

The physician disclosed fear he might not actually be dealing with his son's kidnaper by inserting an advertisement in the Seattle Daily Times yesterday imploring the abductor to "give me information so that I may guard against imposters and hijackers."

The advertisement was addressed to "Mable," as were four previous notes which have appeared in the newspaper's "personal" column, and was signed "Ann."

"Mable—We are still waiting. All arrangements have been carried out in accordance with instructions in notes received. Be certain to give me information so that I may guard against imposters and hijackers, and be more specific in your instructions—Ann."

Reliable sources interpreted the advertisement to mean the ransom for Charles' release has not been paid, though they speculated efforts to pay it may have been made.

One theory, supported by several sources, was that Dr. Mattson made an attempt to pay the ransom late Thursday but was unable to complete the transaction.

The unconfirmed theory served as one possible explanation for the sudden flurry of activity by agents of the federal bureau of investigation here yesterday.

About The Folks

Mrs. Sarah Ennist of 37 Meadow street is ill at her home.

Richard May of Smith avenue, who has been ill for the past few weeks, is getting along very nicely.

Miss Florence Dittus is ill at her home, 77 West Union street, with a heavy cold and is under the care of Dr. Lehner.

Rudolph Staudacher of New York city and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Dittus of Bogota, N. J., returned home after spending the holidays with the Misses Catherine and Florence Dittus of 77 West Union street.

Harry Weczenaar, of 49 Franklin street, was conveyed to the Benedictine Hospital for treatment on Friday afternoon. He had been ill for several days and his condition became so critical that his physician ordered him removed to the hospital.

Earl Pettinger, formerly of the Franklin Pharmacy, now on a business trip to the west coast, wrote from Santiago, Cal., to his sister, Mrs. Raymond Stewart, 158 Bruyn avenue, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pettinger, 129 Prospect street, that he is enjoying himself. He hopes to spend the winter in California. New Year's day he attended the Rose Bowl football game.

Large Crowds at Disposal Sale

A mob of eager bargain hunters besieged the doors of the Rose & Gorman store this morning, awaiting the opening of the heralded disposal sale of the Rose & Gorman stock of merchandise.

In addition to the hundreds that gathered at the main entrance on North Front street before the doors opened shortly after 9:30 as many more were said to be waiting at the entrance from the parking space at the rear of the store.

The crowds increased as the morning wore on, out of town busses bringing in their loads from nearby communities while people from distant points in the county took advantage of the favorable weather to drive in to Kingston and take advantage of the big sale.

All merchandise throughout the store, including the extensive basement, had been remarked and priced at figures that showed marked reductions and the large force of clerks was kept busy all through the day waiting on the steady stream of customers.

The sale will continue until the entire Rose & Gorman stock is disposed of.

In Canberra, capital city of the Commonwealth of Australia, no one has ever committed a serious crime.

Mrs. Lanzafami Asks Fees Pending Solution of Case

Charging that her husband left her alone without food in the house, with two small children, Marianna Lanzafami by her guardian, Rosario Pafumi, is now seeking alimony and counsel fees pending trial of an action to dissolve her marriage to Joseph Lanzafami of Lloyd. Harry G. Harper appeared for plaintiff and A. D. Lent for the defendant, when the matter came before Supreme Court Justice Schirick Friday at a regular special term.

The couple was married in 1934 and have two small children. She was 17 at the time of her marriage and he was 32, according to counsel. One claim made by counsel is that the girl was too young to be able to care for a family and had gone at times to the home of her parents to be aided in her problems. The wide difference is ages the opposing counsel claims is the true reason. However there were charges that the couple got along well together but that there was too much interference by her parents.

After their marriage they went to live on an Ardonia farm and it was charged that in February she left the house and went to her father's place. Defendant says he went there to see her and was threatened with a gun by her father after an argument.

However, three weeks later she returned to her husband and in September following an argument over whether there was wood for the fire, she left home and returned to her parents. However, counsel for defendant claims that she was willing to return to him later but her parents objected and said Lanzafami was too old for her and that was the couse of the friction.

"It's too much mother-in-law," said Mr. Lent to the court.

Plaintiff alleges that at one time her husband left her alone with two very small children in the house and went to New York without providing anyone to care for his wife and without food in the house. The separation is sought on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

The court directed the filing of additional affidavits.

Tozzi Turned Over To Parole Officers In Supreme Court

Frank Tozzi, who was picked up on December 26 by State Troopers Klein and Elliott and held for violation of parole, was turned over to parole officers Friday following a hearing Friday on a writ of habeas corpus in Supreme Court.

There was a gasoline station robbery near New Paltz some time ago and during the investigation of that act the Troopers picked up Tozzi and he was held in the jail here by Sheriff Molyneaux under a parole board warrant.

The charge was violation of parole. Elmor H. Nathan appeared for the petitioner who sought to be released from custody under the writ, claiming the sheriff had no legal grounds for holding him. District Attorney Cleon B. Murray appeared for Sheriff Molyneaux and the parole board was represented by an assistant attorney general.

The writ was sworn out for the purpose of determining the legality of the paper upon which Tozzi was held. Tozzi was sentenced by Judge Traver in April of 1931 to Elmira State Reformatory for rape, second degree. In 1932 he was admitted to parole after a hearing before the parole board. The contention of the state was that for the crime of rape there is a maximum sentence of 10 years and that the parole board had a right to keep Tozzi under its jurisdiction after his release from the reformatory.

Mr. Nathan argued that Tozzi had been out four years and three months since his parole and that the warrant upon which he was held was not valid.

The writ was sworn out to test the validity of the warrant upon which Tozzi was picked up on and held by the sheriff for the parole officers. He argued that the law was specific in its statement that the warrant of arrest must contain an expression of time limit and that since the warrant, which was the usual parole board form, did not contain any time limit in which the warrant must be served it was illegal and the defendant was not legally held in custody. He pointed out that the legislature in passing this law had made a specific provision stating that the time must be stated in the warrant and he held that therefore the court had nothing to do but to discharge the defendant since the warrant clearly contained no time limit for service.

Mr. Nathan stated that it was a question whether Tozzi had been picked up for violation of parole or for some other matter.

Justice Schirick held that there was no question that the parole board had jurisdiction and he denied the writ. The defendant was remanded to the custody of the sheriff pending arrival of the officers.

Jury Disagrees In Dellay Case

After eight and one-half hours' deliberation, the jury in the case of John Dellay, Rosendale realtor, on trial in New York Federal Court for conspiracy to violate the liquor law, disagreed 11 to 1 for acquittal. The jury failed to report by 11 o'clock Friday night, and was discharged.

Dellay was represented by John M. Cashin of the law firm of Cashin & Enis, Kingston, who said that in conversation with members of the jury, after their dismissal, he learned of the 11 to 1 verdict.

Work on Westminster Abbey for the repair of the famous structure closed four months.

Recent County Property Sales

Sam N. Mann and Nathaniel B. Gross sold the log cabin and frame bungalow with acreage bordering the Peterskill in the mountains above Accord to Alma Mary Fischer of New York city. It is rather unusual to have people from New York interested in summer property this early in the season say the local realtors and it indicates greater activity this year.

The same brokers purchased the year-round bungalow and plot near Schoentag's from Samuel R. Paradee and Anna L. Paradee who left for Florida this week.

The Homeseekers' Savings and Loan Association conveyed the cottage and two bungalows bordering the Rondout River to Mann and Gross with resale pending to New York parties.

Vladimar Kost of New Paltz sold seven acres at Springtown to James F. Maher of Brooklyn and the Hudson Counties Estates, Inc., sold the 11 acres near the Walden airport to Thomas Johnson of Staten Island. These two sales were consummated through the real estate agency of Nathaniel B. Gross with offices at 277 Fair street.

Local Death Record

New Paltz, Jan. 9.—Edna Fisher, a graduate of New Paltz Normal School, class of 1934, died just before the Christmas vacation. Her many friends were grieved to receive the sad news.

Monday at 7 a. m. at St. Joseph's Church an anniversary Mass will be offered for the repose of the soul of Thomas Rossi, who died January 11, 1934, and who resided at 18 Cedar street. The Rev. Edmund Burke will officiate. All relatives and friends are invited to attend.

New Paltz, Jan. 9.—Mrs. Carrie Hahn Pierce died of pneumonia at Oakdale, Pennsylvania, recently. No immediate relatives survive, but she had many friends in New Paltz, who were grieved to learn of her death. When in New Paltz she was a member of the Methodist Church but since living at Oakdale she became a member there and was also active in Sunday School, where she was a teacher.

Mrs. Ida Mosher, wife of Everett Mosher, died at her home in Willow on Friday, January 8, aged 83 years. She is survived beside her husband by three sons, Ross of Binghamton, Stanley of New York city, and Viron at home; one daughter, Mrs. Eugene A. Quick of Kingston, and six grandchildren; also two brothers, Virano Van Williams of Baltimore and Cameron Van Williams of Kingston and two sisters, Miss Allie Van Williams and Mrs. Charles Stahl of Kingston. Funeral services will be held in the Wesleyan M. E. Church at Willow on Sunday, January 10, at 11 a. m. Burial in Willow Cemetery.

The funeral of John Hoffman was held this morning from the funeral parlors of Jenson & Deegan, 113 Broadway, at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. John P. Neumann. The church was filled with his many relatives and friends. At the offertory of the Mass John Raible sang "O Salutarius" and at the conclusion, as the body was borne from the church, "Jesu Dulces Memoria." Many beautiful floral pieces and numerous spiritual bouquets were sent by a large number of friends. The casket bearers were Fred Fahnrick, Frank Fahnrick, Jacob Schultz, John Meyers, William Thomas and Andrew Broskey. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery where the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen gave the final absolution as the body was laid to rest in the family plot.

Rescue Elected Their Officers

At the annual meeting of Rescue Hook & Ladder Company Friday evening the following officers were elected: Foreman, Edgar W. Harlow; first assistant, Joseph Zeeb; second assistant, Vernon Radell; secretary, John Zeeb; treasurer, Michael Howard; trustees, Henry Dittus, Alex Ostrander and Thomas Coughlin; delegate to City Fire Fund Association, William Pratt; delegates to Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association, Thomas Coughlin, Joseph Radell, Henry Dittus, Michael Graney and John Scharp; delegates to Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, Carl Spiegel and Samuel Arnet.

Kingston G. O. P. Club Meeting

The Republican Club of the town of Kingston held its first meeting of the year at Reiff's Hall on Thursday evening.

The club elected Mrs. Sarah Charlton an honorary life member of the club. She is one of the oldest and most respected citizens in the town and the mother of Henry Charlton, president of the club last year. Her son, the late Frank Charlton, for many years was supervsor of the town.

Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

"Mechanical birds" have replaced live canaries and white mice in many southern Illinois coal mines to warn miners of odorless carbon monoxide gas.

A picture without a frame is forlorn. A farm home without trees, shrubbery, lawns, and flowers is even more abandoned to a friendless atmosphere.

Asks Release from Judgment, Says Service Was Illegal

Attacking the legality of the service of a paper, John Pivin of Greenfield appeared in Supreme Court Friday and asked that a judgment which had been taken against him and another be dismissed and that he be relieved from the charge of not having appeared in court when summoned. He charged that he never had been served with the summons and that the paper had been served on his cousin, Peter Pivin, at their Sullivan county home.

John Bonomi appeared for John Pivin, farmer and junk dealer, who denied he had been served with any summons last August or September. Ellsworth Baker appeared for the plaintiff in the action, Lizzie Hodge.

After testiomny had been taken by plaintiff and it had been testified that Elmer Furlong never served a paper on John Pivin, the proponents of the motion rested. The process server had stood up and been identified as the man who served a paper on Peter Pivin in August or September. Then Mr. Baker called his first witness, the process server.

After being sworn Elmer took the stand and was asked by Mr. Baker whether he had served a paper on Pivin last summer.

"Well," said the witness, "after looking over the witnesses and hearing them testify, I am convinced I never did serve John Pivin but the other man, Peter. He is the man I have seen driving about and have always known as John Picin."

Justice Schirick smiled broadly at Mr. Baker and Mr. Baker said that under the circumstances he guessed the case was concluded and he could not further oppose the matter.

The action grew out of a note transaction. In a deal over some stock Moses Steinhorn and John Pivin signed a note. Lizzie Hodge later brought an action to recover on the note. It was in that action that an attempt was made to serve John Pivin as one of the signers of the note. The process server went to the Pivin home and served a paper, but apparently he served Peter Pivin instead of John, who it was testified was away that day in New York city.

Later when Pivin was cited to appear for examination in court, but failed to appear on advice of his counsel, who claimed that never having been served in the original matter he was not in court and did not have to answer the summons. Trial of the note action is on the calendar in Sullivan county for the present term.

NARCOTIC ADDICTS REDUCED IN NATION

Traffic Among School Children Causes Concern.

Washington. — Narcotic addiction in the United States is decreasing, but the official report of H. J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, transmitted to the International Drug convention through the secretary of state, disclosed, nevertheless, that in this country there still is close to one addict to each thousand of population of about 128,000,000.

Among the events of the year involved in the report to the convention, which is connected with the League of Nations, was that of the development of a widespread traffic in the narcotic known as Indian hemp, or marijuana. This traffic is not forbidden by the Harrison narcotic act, although it is in violation of a number of state laws. This problem, it was said, had "proved most disquieting to the bureau during the year throughout the country."

Marijuana Traffic.

"Attention is called to the fact that over 195 tons of marijuana, in the form of plants, flowering tops and cigarettes, have been confiscated and destroyed in the various states during 1935," the report said.

While not disclosed by the report, the narcotic bureau and Washington police investigated the use of marijuana cigarettes by school children. This aspect of the marijuana traffic was regarded by treasury authorities as particularly serious. It was expected that in the next session of congress an effort would be made to amend the Harrison act so that the federal authorities might cope with this traffic.

In discussing the decline in illicit narcotic addiction during 1935 Commissioner Anslinger called attention to the following factors:

The co-operation resulting from the 1931 treaty limiting the manufacture of narcotics, and the fact that production in Europe has been reduced by thirty tons annually.

The high adulteration of narcotics, acting as a forced reduction treatment.

Forces High Prices.

The scarcity of pure narcotics, causing a prohibitive increase in price, and forcing certain classes of addicts to take cures for economic reasons.

Collateral allied police activity by foreign governments (except those of the Far East) in breaking up organized smuggling gangs, in co-operation with the United States government.

Secretary Morgenthau has instituted a campaign against the illicit entry of narcotics into the United States. It was significant that Commissioner Anslinger's report, coupled with an ordered concentration of Treasury enforcement agents on the west coast and in Hawaii, indicated that this country's principal problem in restricting the illicit traffic was concerned with the Orient.

Mrs. A. H. Pearson, Brary Va., was born on the 13th, married on the 13th, had 13 children and 13 grandchildren.

Paints and Lacquers

The usual oil paint consists of a pigment held in linseed oil, to which special driers and thinners may be added; there are also alcohol paints and water color paints in which the pigment is mixed with a substance soluble in water, such as glycerine. Lacquers may be spirit varnishes, consisting of shellac with coloring matter and other ingredients dissolved in alcohol, or they may contain nitrocellulose or similar ingredient in suitable solvent. They are generally fast drying. The enamel paints, as distinguished from the enamels requiring heat to apply may use varnishes containing gums instead of oil; they give a smooth glossy coat.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Film factory touring:

"History Is Made at Night," the title declares, and Jean Arthur and Charles Boyer are surrounded by a group of Hollywood's finest "dress extras" for a sequence of a fashionable evening gathering.

Frank Borzage, the director, volunteers between scenes the opinion that movie "dress extras" such as he has commandeered are the best dressed men in the world—not excepting the Beau Brummels of London, New York, Paris.

The exaggeration, if such it is, is slight. These men on the set today are decked in formal raiment, with never a flaw in a white tie, and never a moth hole in flowing tails.

Millionaire' Wardrobes

The dress extra has to have a wardrobe fit for a millionaire, must keep it up to date, and have a flair for wearing it. The successful dress extras, who get the most calls to work, know exactly what to wear without being told. The responsibility rests with them—and that is one of the reasons they draw $15 a day (or $25 for speaking lines) when the ordinary extra gets $7.50. . . .

After long preparation, the Marx brothers are actually shooting "A Day at the Races." Harpo and Chico are working on a scene, a simple scene in a hospital corridor.

Silent Harpo is following a tip-toeing Chico who continually enjoins silence. Chico finally tells Harpo to take off his shoes because they squeak. (The squeak will be added later.) Harpo obeys, revealing tattered socks, and underneath these a pair of spats.

One of the reasons they take the scene again is that the spats, mouse-colored, don't look like spats to the camera. A prop man applies make-up to the buttons, which remedies that.

But the reason they take the scene half a dozen times after that is—timing. In comedy timing is all-important. An assistant director beind the camera presses a button which signals to extras beyond the window, in the background, to start moving.

Sam Wood, the director, pressed another which flashes a blonde nurse her cue to enter from a cross corridor and be pursued by Harpo. After seven take: everything seems to be timed correctly. But Wood wears a harassed expression. The director on a Marx picture is always wearing that look. The Marxes are wearing—just wearing. . . .

Barbed wire, now known almost the world over, was first thought of by a farmer in 1874.

Stadium Seating 300,000 at Capital Will Be Proposed

Washington, Jan. 9. (AP.)—Congress soon will be asked to build the world's largest sports stadium here, seating 300,00 and dwarfing Chicago's Soldiers' Field and Philadelphia's sesqui-centennial bowl.

"I'm going to introduce such a measure in a few days," Representative Charles N. Crosby, (RD-PA), said today. "I feel reasonably certain it will be adopted."

A former football player at Western Reserve University and grid-iron coach at Alleghany College, Crosby wants to make Washington the nation's sports center and the site of the annual Army-Navy football game.

"Thousands have been turned away from the Chicago and Philadelphia stadiums, seating more than 100,000, for the Service School game," he pointed out.

Crosby visions an athletic plant where baseball and polo games, track meets, political conventions and parades could be held.

He believes that with suitable seating capacity, the Olympic games could be held here sometime. He plans to ask Congress to make a direct grant of money to build the stadium, and figures that rentals would enable the repayment of the money within 40 years. He estimated it might cost $1,000,000.

NEW PAY SYSTEM FOR NEW YORK JEWEL TEAM

According to latest announcements the New York Jewels, American League basketball team, will inaugurate a new pay system when they play the first game of the second half of the league against the Philadelphia Hebrews tomorrow night in Arcadia Hall.

Every time the Jewels win a league game they will receive 15 per cent more than their contracted salaries. When they lose they will receive a 25 per cent cut.

The question of windows for the new house should be given careful study, as the development of these important features has been quite extensive in recent years.

K.H.S. Beats Newburgh, 26-25, on Charlie Bock's 8-Second Deuce

Kingston High School varsity won s DUSO Basketball League engage- ent at Newburgh Free Academy riday, 26-25, on Charlie Bock's sen- ational field in the last eight sec- nds of play.

Bock outmaneuvered the New- urgh defense, feinting in from side- ourt, to sink the game saving deuce st climaxed the torrid battle dur- g which the clubs were no more an four points apart at any time. harlie also copped individual scor- g honors with 12 points.

The Maroon and White held an 8-7 d at the end of a wild, hectic first uarter and led 15-13 at half-time efore a capacity crowd of rival eering factions that turned the F. A. gym into a roaring bedlam. ction became terrific during the ird stanza which saw the locals nging to an 18-17 edge after a ssion of floor-play that resembled e football contest staged last fall. e lead changed hands with reck- s abandon during the final stanza the huge gathering reached a cal peak and shook the rafters th blasts of frantic cheering.

As the heat of battle reached its eatest intensity, Charlie Bock and ptain Eddie Bahl rose to the occa- n and guided the local unit rough a perilous fourth quarter. hl, chubby back court leader, nned the robes of greatness with o timely deuces and the scintillat- g Bock came through in the clutch th the decisive goal. Newburgh ademy's poor form from the free row line was directly responsible its eventual downfall. Caging y three tosses in ten attempts on e 15-foot stripe, the hilly city opsters missed connections at vital ments although Kingston fared le better with a record of two con- sions in nine efforts.

After Bock opened the festivities th a sensational pushup, the lead anged no less than six times dur- g the first quarter marked by a pidly increasing pace that littered e floor with fallen cagers. Bock ted two pushups, Maines counted h a perfect feint and leaped up a sparkling deuce and Rowland oved in a follow-up for the K. H. total, while sensational shots by Aitulo on two chances and a deuce d foul by Pilus and Havens made 8-7 Kingston.

Pilus ripped in one from the side d Rifenbary's foul tied it before hl's set shot made it 11-9. Lahey verly feinted in for a deuce but ck kept KHS ahead. D'Aitulo sed in a long to tie it at 13 all Fertel's neat tap-in shortly er his entrance into the affair t beat the halftime whistle and t the locals away to the dressing ms ahead by a 15-13 edge.

The contest verged on the historic grid classic as things let loose earnest during the third stanza as ey's set shot tied the score. rtel chimed in with a foul and vens spectacular hook shot was owed by Bock's neat overhead ve to leave it at 18-17 as the rd quarter passed into history.

Leahey and D'Aitulo corraled a d and foul to raise the Newburgh l to 20-18 before Bahl gallantly ned in with a pretty side court t. Bock ripped in another two- ded overhead specialty to give locals the biggest margin of the e as they held a 24-20 lead. ey blasted away with a long and itulo set the crowd wild with a g range basket to tie it with 2 utes to go. D'Aitulo made good a foul to make it 24-25 in NFA's or with time passing. The er's clock ticked off the seconds h maddening rapidity as frantic on reigned. Eight seconds re- ned when Rowland broke up a amidst a wild scramble at the ter and heaved a frantic pass rn court. Bock coralled the ball r the coffin corner and whipped und a baffled defense man to ri through with the winning ket. Fertel missed a foul as an d-climax to the most dramatic ner that KHS has survived in nt years. It looks like a long d year for the local cagers and return engagement with New- gh at the local auditorium on ruary 13 should be a classic court ma.

Chance for Reds To Annex Title Over Week-end

Frank Morgenkeck's Kingston Colonials take part in the week-end basketball schedule of the American League by tangling with Johnny Donlon's Visitations at Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, Sunday night, starting at 9:30 o'clock.

There are five games on the slate, but the most important are the two the league leading Jersey Reds will play with the Philadelphia Hebrews, one at Philly tonight and the other Sunday afternoon at Union City.

The winning of one of these games would give the Reds the first half honors; the loss of both of them would result in a tie for first place which will be broken later without interference as to the second half schedule.

Besides the contests named, the others scheduled are Jersey Reds vs. Celtics at Hippodrome, New York city, and Philadelphia vs. New York Jewels at Arcadia Hall, Brooklyn, both Sunday night.

The Jersey Reds and SPHAS will figure in three of the league tilts, meaning a strenuous Saturday and Sunday.

On Wednesday, January 13, for its home game at the auditorium, Kingston will entertain the Phillies and the following week, January 20, the Jersey Reds. This means a lively start for the second half of the league schedule at the Broadway boards.

Clinton Aces Lose At Coeymans, 27-33

The Coeymans Teachers five, one of the finest amateur clubs in the Capital District, turned back the Clinton Avenue Aces on the upriver court Friday night, by a 33-27 score. Paced by Bill Jones, former Syracuse star, and Rem Furlong, former St. Lawrence University great, the teachers ran up 14 points before the Aces broke into the scoring column. At the midway mark Coeymans held a 19-9 lead.

Playing fine ball after the recess the Clinton Avenue club came back strong, pulling up on even terms with the faculty five in the last quarter. With only a few minutes remaining, Waltz, Coeymans' forward, sank two sensational unorthodox shots to clinch the game for the upriver club. Tom Kunz, former State League star with the Little Falls club, although restricted to three points, played a fine floor game for the winners. Don Boyce and Cowboy Evory scored 8 and 7 points respectively to lead the Aces.

How They Tee Off in Los Angeles Today

Las Angeles, Jan. 9 (AP)—The morning glories of golf—the boys who bloom in the first round and wither away in the second—sought a better fate today in the $8,000 Los Angeles Open.

Thirteen contenders for the rich money purse who bettered or equaled par 71 on the Griffith Park course in the initial 18 holes were out to remain in the charmed bracket.

Out of this group, six nationally known stars held gallery interest, the rest merely hoped for further low shooting.

They started out today in this fashion:

69—Al Baker, Los Angeles driving range pro; Harry Cooper, Chicago.

70—Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis; Al Krueger, Beloit, Wis.; Gray Madison, Phoenix, Ariz.; Willie Goggin, San Bruno, Calif.; Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore.; Jimmy Hines, 1935 L. A. Open titlist, Garden City, L. I.

71—Horton Smith, Chicago; George Schneiter, Ogden, Utah; Henry Pickard, Hershey, Pa.; Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Al Gruber, Palos Verdes, Calif.

Still within firing distance were all other well-known shotmakers. Thirteen hit 72 yesterday, including Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Sam Parks, Jr., Pittsburgh, and Jimmy Thompson of Shawnee, Pa., and 15 landed on the 73 shelf, determined not to stay there.

After yesterday's afternoon near freezing spell, which cost strokes to many a chill-bitten golfer, the boys came out in heavy attire today.

Fake Bunnies Don't Fool Dogs

Greyhouds Train On Real Cotton-Tails

THE FINAL SPURT: These greyhounds know perfectly well they're not about to catch a rabbit.

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Racing greyhounds chase a mechanical rabbit around the track, but they know as well as the fellow betting on them that the electrically driven cottontail is a fake.

They know because they have developed their swift-moving legs running after live bunnies.

The love of stretching their lean, long-tailed bodies after any quarry is what impels them to chase dummy rabbits, says Art Wilson, one of the leading kennel owners and trainers, here for the Florida season after a successful campaign in Massachusetts.

Stamina, determination to win and speed count for a lot, but schooling in the fields for racing on the closed course is important.

Before their first race—usually at about the age of 18 months—most hounds are turned out after live rabbits and entered in cross-country coursing events.

Older Dog Is Teacher

Usually under guidance of an older dog they are introduced then to the electrically-operated rabbit running around the track on a metal rail.

If the young dog shows zest in pursuit of the dummy, he is practiced on starting from the box and later raced—if he doesn't, he may never be raced, or he may be schooled some more in the field. Sometimes the best coursers are the poorest performers on tracks.

Good time for a dog running is five-sixteenths of a mile track in 31 seconds, depending to a large extent on the size and shape of the track and whether the rabbit is placed on the inside or outside rail. They're much swifter in straightaway cross-country coursing. Ordinarily, a dog's racing life continues through his fourth year. Valuations range from $50 to $3,000, but a good racer can be bought for $500.

"There aren't any such things as authentic world track records for dogs," says Wilson. "There can't be when no two tracks are built alike. Of course, there can be individual track records."

Watch Vitamins

The racing diet? One meal a day, usually barley, meat, spinach and biscuit.

"Those vitamins the doctors talk about count just as much with dogs as they do with human beings," Wilson says.

"Two fast dogs won't necessarily produce a litter of good racers. You've got to study their blood lines back for generations to see if their different qualities will blend successfully.

"All the training in the world won't help a dog win races if he isn't bred right. If his breeding is good he will have stamina and a determination to win. These are more important than speed."

Some 1,500 dogs are kenneled for the 90-day sessions at four tracks hereabouts.

THE GIRL is Maurine Kerns. The greyhounds are incidental.

Ambers Given Draw With Venturi, but Italian Looks Best

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—When Lou Ambers' six months of grace are up and he gets ready to defend his lightweight championship, he'll probably have a ready-made challenger for the title.

Enrico Venturi, the Italian flash, was ready to move into that No. 1 spot today after an unsatisfactory ten-round draw with Ambers in an overweight match at Madison Square Garden last night. He had won a dozen bouts in this country before meeting Ambers.

A crowd of close to 10,000 fans, who paid $18,886.31, greeted the draw decision with a round of derisive booing. Many thought Venturi had handed Ambers his third setbacks during his championship reign.

Since he whipped Tony Canzoneri for the crown, Ambers has been beaten by Eddie Cool, Philadelphia lightweight, and the comeback Jimmy McLarnin in nontitle bouts. He still has about two months before he will be required to put his title on the block.

Before last night's bout, the Italian's supporters sought to make it a championship go or at least have Venturi named the outstanding challenger. The New York State Athletic Commission ruled out the proposal, decreeing, in effect, he first would have to show what he could do against Ambers in a non-title mill.

Wins Six Rounds

Venturi showed all concerned last night. After the first three rounds in which his extra caution allowed Ambers to pile up a point margin, the clever Italian went to work, hit the "Herkimer Hurricane" almost at will and made the champ miss badly with his dangerous right.

Although Ambers scored the only knockdown when he dropped Venturi for a one count with a right-hand smash in the second, the Associated Press score card credited six rounds to the Italian and three to the titleholder.

"Farmer" Burns, Pro Mat Dean, Dead

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Jan. 9 (AP)—Death removed Martin "Farmer" Burns, dean of professional wrestlers, from the American sports scene last night.

Although nearly 77 years old, he still offered to meet all comers until his health failed a few months ago. He died at his daughter's home.

Burns had been connected with the wrestling sport, as performer and trainer, more than half a century. He was holder of the world's heavyweight championship from 1895 to 1898 and discoverer and tutor of Frank Gotch, one of the nation's greatest wrestlers, who retired as undefeated world champion.

Teld World's Title.

The "Farmer," a sobriquet he acquired when a gangling youth of 19, won the world's heavyweight title by throwing the original Strangler (Evan) Lewis in Chicago. He lost it to Tom Jenkins. Then and later he was legitimately a light-heavyweight, never having weighed more than 180 pounds.

He claimed the light-heavyweight title, even before his heavyweight days, and held it until 1911 when he passed it on to Freddie Beel.

6,000 Bouts.

During his career he engaged in approximately 6,000 bouts, claiming to have lost only seven. It was his boast that he taught 3,000 men to wrestle. He retired from regular competition in 1922, but continued to train wrestlers for years and occasionally went into the ring himself.

Burns' neck and shoulder muscles were so well developed that as a carnival stunt he would take the regulation drop with the hangman's noose around his neck, and engage spectators in conversation while suspended.

St. Paul—Farmer Tobin, 260, Presque Isle, Me., threw Pat McGill, 240, Omaha, Neb., (one fall).

Church Cage League Will Start Second Half Schedule on Monday

The second half of the Church Basketball League begins at the Y. M. C. A. Monday night, January 11, with seven teams entered for the last half. The addition of St. Mary's necessitates a bye each week for one of the clubs. The Clinton Avenue and First Dutch fives open the last half Monday night on the "Y" court at 7:30. The Clinton Avenue club finished second in the standings at the close of the first half and will be favored over the Dutchmen who have secured Bill Thomas for the mainder of the season.

The second contest features the league leading Redeemers, undefeated thus far this season, and the Comforter Missions. Barring an upset the Redeemers are favored to score their tenth straight victory. In the filnale the Port Ewen quintet plays the Comforter Aces. Port Ewen has been victorious in both of the two previous battles between these clubs and is expected to start the second half in the victory column. St. Mary's, having drawn the bye, will not start until January 18.

Budge and Grant In Miami Net Finals

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP)—Don Budge, the nation's ranking amateur tennis player, and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, long a nemesis to favored net stars, came together today in the finals of the Miami Biltmore tournament.

The test with Grant gave the tall, red-haired smasher from Oakland, Cal., his first chance to justify his newly-acquired No. 1 national ranking against formidable opposition.

The tiny Atlantan listed No. 3 in the nation took revenge yesterday in the semi-final round over Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., racquet swinger who put him out of the 1936 Miami Biltmore.

Hendrix appeared on the verge of a repeat victory, only to fail as Grant brought his game under control and won 6-4, 0-6, 6-2, 0-6, 6-2.

Hendrix sprung the surprise upset of the tournament again this year, eliminating Frankie Parker in the quarter-finals.

Budge took the measure of Charles Harris, Palm Beach, the 1936 winner, after a ragged start, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Grant holds two 1936 exhibition victories over the Californian, winning at Atlanta and White Sulphur Springs.

Motorboat Show At Grand Central

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Fishing with all the comforts of home—that's what is offered Waltonites by motor and sail boat builders at the 27th annual motorboat show this week.

With innovations and special equipment on virtually all fishing craft, it's a case of play your line as you comfortably please these days. There's everything on hand from swivel chairs to electrically-refrigerated bait-boxes that keep the "chum" cool for contented fishes.

Along with the return of prosperity to the boating industry and with motor-boating now available for the poor-man's pocketbook, manufacturers are throwing in these case-producing details with new designs in all exhibits from the smallest canoe to the 50-foot cruiser.

Landlubber New Yorkers, whose only previous experience has been on the swaying subway decks, are going for it in a big way at Grand Central Palace, where the show got under way last night.

The swivel chair idea, which, previously was seen only on the decks of the "millionaire" cruiser class, is spreading to the boats now in the range of the white collar worker. These chairs are equipped with footrests and backrests.

It's A Game Called Scoot

Track Coach's Invention Makes Exercise a Pleasure

Winfield, Kas. (AP)—Gym classes at Winfield High School have been "scooterized."

It all started when Ralph Titus, director of physical education and track coach, sought something to take the drudgery out of calisthenics. He developed the scooter and now, instead of exercising on parallel bars and other standard equipment in the gym, his boys roll around on the scooters.

He has turned gym classes into competitive teams, with the lads getting exercise that, according to Titus, is just as beneficial.

The scooter is a simple thing, consisting of a square of wood about the size of a baseball home plate mounted on four casters or wheels. The wheels, equipped with rubber or fabroid tires, permit spinning in any direction. The scooter-mounted gym student propels himself with hands and feet.

For Hockey, Too

The scooter is easily adapted to many games. Five boys form teams for basketball, passing and shooting at the goals. Eleven on a side indulge in football, with the backs spinning into the line or fading back for passing. Hockey can be played on scooters, too. Relay and wheelbarrow races are run.

Lying face downward on the scooters, boys race across the gym floor.

"Just as good for them as swimming and they don't get sun-burned," says Titus.

Idea Spreads

Physical education experts elsewhere are interested. A set of scooters already has gone to a state teachers college at Albion, Mich. Other orders are coming in. Titus has been asked by several schools, including one university, to bring his boys and scooters for a demonstration. At two schools the demonstrations will be put on between halves of basketball games. Titus is seeking to patent the device.

"The same thing caused the invention of the scooter that brought about the beginning of basketball," Titus says. "That was to turn exercises in a gym into active competition. All manner of games are possible on the scooter."

Titus, a former manual arts instructor, has so far manufactured the scooters himself.

SAVE BROKEN NECKS BY NEW TECHNIQUE

Treatment Results Successfully in Nineteen Cases.

Oakland, Calif —Application of a new technique to save victims with broken necks has resulted successfully in all of nineteen cases in which the method was used, it is revealed here

Two patients at the Almeda county hospital here are the latest to survive under the new treatment, which is the discovery of Dr Thomas I Hoen of Montreal Like other experimental methods in surgery and medicine, it had been a lay secret until the technique was applied successfully to the two Almeda cases

The two victims were Paul Regamonti, a CCC worker, whose neck was broken when an automobile overturned, and William Lawrence, who suffered his injury in falling down stairs

Both had been treated by the old-time method of placing the head and neck in a rigid brace before it was decided to undertake the new surgical technique developed by Dr. Hoen.

Under Dr Hoen's method the scalp is anaesthetized, four holes are drilled into the skull, two on each side, and wires strung connecting the broken vertebrae with a pulley and weights At first twenty-five pound weights are used to pull and hold the vertebrae in place. So swift is the healing action that the fracture is reduced in a period of six hours After that six-pound weights are sufficient to keep the broken vertebrae in place until completely healed, usually within six weeks

In the case of Regamonti and Lawrence X-rays were taken every ten minutes, with the result that a veritable moving picture record was made of the quick reduction of the fracture.

In all the nineteen cases on which the new technique has been employed complete cures have been effected.

Benjamin Black, superintendent of the Alameda county hospital, reports broken necks occur chiefly in these accidents

Divers who hit the bottom with their head because the water is too shallow, football players, persons who fall down stairs, and automobile accidents.

Last Cave Dwellers in Europe Are Moved Out

Budapest—The last settlement of cave dwellers in Europe has disappeared.

Until recently, in a certain district of the Hungarian county Borsod, not far from the Czechoslovak border, several thousand poor farmers, together with their pigs and poultry, lived in caves into which no ray of the sun ever penetrated

For many decades neither authorities nor public opinion paid any heed to their condition.

Then recently a group of socially minded young Hungarian writers roused the nation's conscience and started a movement to end this medieval situation

Among the first to respond to their call were members of the cabinet.

Minister of Interior Nicholas Kozma donated a neat wooden farmhouse; this example was followed by his colleagues, Foreign Minister Koloman Von Tanya, Finance Minister Tihamer Fabinyi, and Minister of Commerce Geza Bornemisza.

During the summer a new up-to-date village, with a modern church and school building, was constructed.

It was named "Mikszatfalva," or Mikszat's village, after the writer Mikszat, who, by depicting the plight of the cave dwellers, had greatly contributed to the reform.

By the end of September the population had moved into their new homes.

To destroy every vestige of the former shameful situation, the cave settlement was blown up dynamite.

Man Who Gave Hawaii Its First "Uke" Still Alive

Honolulu. — The man who brought the first ukulele to Hawaii is still alive. Jose P. Rodrigues, arriving here with a group of Portuguese immigrants twenty years before the islands became an American territory, brought an instrument with him which since has become identified with grass skirts and full moons.

Ukulele means jumping flea in Hawaiian. The instrument was so small that when the large-handed natives tried to play it they were clumsy and it jumped out of their hands. Hence the name.

Shriners Ball Enjoyable Affair

The Municipal Auditorium was filled last evening with a delighted audience and hundreds of happy dancers, the occasion being the Shriners' ball for the benefit of the Industrial Home

Apparently the people of Kingston really did miss the Shriners' ball last season for its own sake and because it offers each year the privilege of helping maintain the Industrial Home for children, judging by the crowd that turned out last evening when the annual affair was resumed once more

Frank L Brown and his efficient committee made no idle boast when they said that they would decorate the Auditorium so that it would remind the Shriners of the wonderful 'Garden of Allah'

The large and most attractive stage had been miraculously changed into a garden of strange and fascinating beauty In softly burning letters the cryptic symbol of "Cyprus was hung in the air above a latticed garden gate decorated with wisteria vines and blossoms On either side were tall trellises flower covered picturesque garden seats, a silver ball on pedestal and shrubbery and flowers all having a crystal sheen in the soft amethyst light

The two orchestras, Paul Zucca's of this city, and Dick Stabile's of New York city, were stationed on either side of the Auditorium, somewhat centralizing the music

Considerable ingenuity was shown by Mr Brown and his committee in utilizing small pipes running along the ceiling as horizontal flag staffs on which were hung the gaily colored flags of many nations, livening up the monotonous coloring of the side walls, and the balcony was flag decorated also.

A very large audience had gathered for the beginning of the program and this audience was highly entertained by the excellent and very melodious music by Zucca's large orchestra, which also included singers, who added several excellent vocal numbers to the promenade concert which preceded the program, and was much applauded

The announcer of the program was Zingone, "Marvelous Magician," who acted as master of ceremonies besides doing some exceedingly clever sleight of hand stunts

He first presented Barbara MacDonald, tap dancer noted on the stage and screen, who did some very swift and fancy tap dancing This was followed by the appearance of Garron and Bennett whose waltz dancing was most artistic as to costume and grace. Both were encored so heartily that they gave a second number

While the few sleight of hand stunts done by Zingone were most clever, and the rope-cutting stunt particularly so, his fun and nonsense were enjoyed as much as his performance as a magician

Even more dazzling than their first number was the Parisian Bolero danced by Gannon and Bennett and it was as artistic in the costuming as in the dancing.

A second tap dance was given by Barbara Mac Donald.

The last number on the program was given by "Three Speeds," who gave a fast roller skating exhibition that made the audience dizzy watching them although it apparently did not disturb their equilibrium. After much coaxing they persuaded one man and one young girl to "take a ride" with them much to the amusement of the audience and their own undoing for a few minutes.

After the entertainment, dancing began at an hour that greatly pleased the many who came to dance, for it assured them of a good long evening of dancing to very excellent dance music given alternately by Stabile and Zucca. The perfect dancing floor was filled with dancers presenting a fascinating picture.

The refreshment room was a very popular place for delicious ice cream and homemade cake as well as refreshing lemonade were served there throughout the evening. The happy event must have netted a fine sum for the Industrial Home.

Greenburg Officer Proves Mid-Wife By Radio Control

New York, Jan 9 (AP)—A radio "remote control" baby, brought into the world by a husky six-foot cop, gurgled happily today — but the "mid-wife" cop did not

'This is awful," said the impromptu obstetrician, patrolman George Butler, 35, of the Greenburg, N Y, police force, who lone-handedly delivered Mrs Eleanor Moller, 22, of a nine pound one-ounce baby.

"They want to hang a doctor's sign on my car Even my wife is kidding me'

Officer Butler's dilemma began when he was sent out on a midnight call to the Moller home, where he found the young expectant mother alone—and the expectations getting acute

Butler hopped back in his radio patrol car and called police headquarters "It's a woman going to have a baby—right away!" he said in a harrowed voice "What am I supposed to do about it?"

The desk officer at police headquarters called hospitals in Grasslands and White Plains, but neither had an ambulance available He then dispatched another radio patrol car to pick up the nearest physician, Dr Cassius L De Victoria, 15 miles distant

Meanwhile, he told Patrolman Butler to "stand by and wait instructions" The instruction finally came through by radio when the second radio patrol car reached Dr. De Victoria's residence

Taking hasty notes on the physician's aerial obstetrical lecture, Patrolman Butler finally muttered, "Okay, I think I understand—I'd better'" and went back into the Moller house to chalk up a new item on the list of queer things a cop has to do

Twenty minutes later, when Dr De Victoria arrived, a grinning Patrolman Butler met him at the door.

"It's in there, doc," he beamed, jerking his thumb backward over his shoulder "And if I do say so, it's a great little kid

Dr De Victoria pronounced the operation beyond criticism. "I couldn't," he said, "have done better myself"

The baby, said Mrs Moller proudly today, will be named John Butler Moller—in honor of "Dr." Officer Butler.
